

Class attracts greeks

A special topics class in the management of volunteer organizations has attracted several fraternity and sorority officers, said Ron Smith, dean of the UNL college of business administration.

The class was offered for the first time this semester and has 27 students mostly juniors and seniors, he said. Smith teaches the class.

Last fall a group of students interested in community organizations such as United Way requested a class in the management of such organizations, Smith said. Since then, news of the class has passed among students and attracted various fraternity and sorority officers, he said.

Students receive credit for the class just as they would for any other management class, he said. A regular classroom format is followed, Smith said, however there have been several guest speakers, such as Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis.

The class has studied the selection of goals, leadership, changes, behavior and education, Smith said.

Special topics classes "need flexibility" Smith said, and the class probably would not be offered next semester to accommodate another special interest group.

As a result of the class, Smith said, there have been certain aspects in volunteer leadership that he would like to incorporate into the regular management classes.

Devaney says no

UNL athletic director Bob Devaney has indicated he wants to keep his name to himself—or at least not loan it to the football field in Memorial Stadium.

The Nebraska Legislature has been battling over naming the new sports complex after Devaney. Last week a compromise proposal to name the new building the Nebraska Sports Complex and the field after Devaney was made.

Devaney has written a letter to Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke, speaker of the Legislature, asking that his name not be given to the field.

Devaney wrote that stadiums are synonymous with the playing fields.

"Stadiums are filled with fans drawn by the feats of sportsmanship and courage on the field. The field is the stadium's heart," he said.

Noting that the stadium was built in commemoration of Nebraska's war dead, he wrote, "I feel we should not in any way detract from the glory of the men of Nebraska who made their supreme sacrifice for their country."

Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis who introduced the original bill to name the complex after Devaney, told the Omaha World-Herald last Friday that he will make one more attempt to name the complex after Devaney before letting the bill be killed.
