Guerrillas

Sidon, Lebanon—Palestinian guerrillas claimed capture of a Christian stronghold near the Israeli border Thursday and said they were drawing fire from Israeli tanks and artillery across the border. Israel also sent reconnaissance planes over the battle area, they said. At the same time Lebanon's rightist Christian leaders sent an urgent appeal to Arab states to intervene against the advancing leftist Palestinian forces in southern Lebanon to prevent the battle there from rekindling the country's civil war. They urged Arab peacekeepers to save the "life of a sisterly nation." In Israel the military command declined to comment directly on reports of tank movements and overflights and would only say there was no unusual activity in the region. Israel is known to be worried that a victory in southern Lebanon by the Palestinians would once again allow them to conduct raids and harass the Israeli border area.

Assassination

Karlsruhe, West Germany—A gunman firing from a motorcycle assassinated West Germany's leading prosecutor of urban terrorists Thursday as his car pulled away from a traffic light in downtown Karlsruhe, police said. The Baden-Wuerttemberg Interior Ministry said Federal Prosecutor Siegfried Buback, 57, and his driver died instantly and his bodyguard was critically wounded. Police said the murder vehicle carried a driver and passenger. The rider sprayed the car with machine gunfire. The motorcycle carried a license plate from Ludwigshafen, 30 miles down the Rhine river, the spokesman said. Witnesses told police the driver of the Japanese-manufactured vehicle may have been a woman. Both assassins were wearing crash helmets and heavy clothing.

Energy policy

Washington—President Carter is preparing to reveal a nuclear energy policy that is expected to delete all federal funding for development of controversial plutonium-powered reactors. It was indicated that the policy statement would be issued Thursday and that it would carry strong wording designed in part to impress upon foreign nuclear powers the U.S. determination to halt the spread of nuclear technology. Sources indicated that Carter did much of the work on the policy statement himself and that it is a strong reflection of the President's personal view on the need to limit nuclear proliferation. In his campaign for the White House, Carter promised to develop a policy that would halt the spread of nuclear technology and particularly the spread of plutonium, which can be used in the manufacture of nuclear bombs.

Rhodes 'shocked'

Washington—House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes says he is "shocked" to find that two congressional clerks, including one technically appointed by him, are running $1-million-a-year print shops rent-free on the Capitol grounds. "This is one of the archaisms around this place that need to be re-examined and changed," Rhodes said through a spokesman. He was reacting to disclosures that clerks Thomas Lankford and David Ramage reap substantial profits and salaries from their privately owned print shops, in addition to the nearly $15,000-a-year salaries they each receive from the taxpayers.

Cancer warning

Washington—A year-and-a-half after warnings began about a possible cancer hazard in millions of children's sleepwear garments, a federal agency is deciding whether to ban the chemical involved. The Consumer Product Safety Commission scheduled a vote Thursday on whether to ban production of Tris, a flame-retardant used in children's polyester sleepwear.

When do you say Budweiser?

- When I think about pizza.
- When my wallet says I can't afford pizza.
- When the delivery guy leaves three large pizzas (with everything) at my door by mistake.

Anytime, anytime's the right time to say Budweiser. And when you do, you've really said it all.
