Deadline delayed

Although Saturday was the deadline specified by the Fees Allocations Board's (FAB) guidelines for final recommendations on fee allocations, the board will not be finished until final cuts have been made, possibly tonight.

According to Richard Armstrong, vice chancellor for student affairs, the extension taken by the board has not been discussed, although he said there will be no problems as long as the recommendations are in his hands by the end of this week.

Even if FAB is a few days later than the May 7 deadline for items to be placed on the agenda for the May NU Board of Regents meeting the recommendations still can be on the agenda, but the regents will receive background material late.

Mothers would lose their sons, wives their husbands, girls their lovers, children their fathers and thousands of gallant young men would perish fighting against impossible odds, for a suicide mission doomed from the start, for generals named Eisenhower and Montgomery, for a great ambition and a greater mistake, and for a bridge. A lousy bridge.
