

Fair: from freaks to ferris wheels

Ah State Fair.

That annual festival of agriculture, midways, corn dogs and cotton candy. The gathering which celebrates both "those born every minute" and those once-in-a-lifetime grand champions.

It's that time of year when Ma, Pa and the kids come in from the fields and down to the fair. For them, it's a chance to live in a different world of brand new machinery, bountiful harvest and industrial displays.

The hucksters gather, ready to trade their freaks for your dollars.

At the end of a weary day, the throngs pour out of the grounds, which wait for another wave to replace them.

Ah, State Fair.

Daily Nebraskan Photos