

Juelfs' strategy is making voter know his name

Stan Juelfs, that's pronounced ju-leffs, is running for governor on the Republican ticket. His problem is, not too many people know him.

He and his family are traveling across Nebraska in a 26-foot red and white motor home marked in large letters, "VOTE FOR STAN."

His campaign strategy is to "make people know who I am and that I'm the best man for the job." He said he's traveled 19,000 miles in six weeks.

Juelfs, 48, was born on a ranch in Cheyenne County. He and his family moved to Kimball in 1960.

"Nebraska's been real good for me," he said. "I want to do something for it."

Juelfs is involved in crude oil production, general insurance and has 10 years of banking experience.

"I consider myself a business man," he said. "Nebraska is a big business and should be run like a business."

One of his concerns is apathy.

"We need to get many, many more people concerned and involved in government," he said. "We're rapidly losing the free out of freedom and the free out of free enterprise." He said people are over-regulated.

"There are more regulations and regulators than we can handle or afford."

Instead of complaining about the situation, Juelfs said he is running for governor so he can do something about it.

Agriculture would be his primary concern is elected governor, he said.

Agriculture "is a sick child that needs help. It needs a shot of medicine," he said.

"The government needs to give more help than they are giving," he said.

The gubernatorial road is not an easy one. Already two candidates have filed and two others recently announced their candidacy. The most recent was U.S. Senator Charles Thone.

Juelfs' comment on Thone was, "He's done an excellent job in Congress. It's a pity he didn't stay there." He said he thought Thone could best help Nebraskans by continuing his work in Congress.

"I can't figure out why he wants to come back down the ladder," Juelfs said.

WHY IS SIGLINDA STEINFÜLLER DEAN OF BEER?

WHY NOT?

Fellow Beer Persons.

Life is full of unanswered questions such as: Is there intelligent life elsewhere in the universe? And if so, do they wear socks?

In beer, however, there are no unanswered questions. Because there is only one word for beer, and you know it.

Schlitz.

Therefore, as your Dean of Beer, I suggest you research the essential rightness of the word for yourself at your next social function. Or even your next antisocial function.

And please note: The recommended source material for locating the word can be found in any phone booth. In other words, look in the Yellow Pages. Under "Beer."

Thank you.

THERE'S JUST ONE WORD FOR BEER.  AND YOU KNOW IT.
