

Big Eight wrestling meet to feature 4 top 10 teams

Four of the top ten teams in the nation will be fighting for the Big Eight Wrestling Championship Friday and Saturday in Stillwater, Okla.

Iowa State University is ranked second, Oklahoma State University is ranked third, Missouri University is ninth and Oklahoma is tenth. OSU was ranked number one until a loss to Iowa State University last week.

Iowa State, Oklahoma State, Missouri and Oklahoma are the top four teams in the Big Eight with Colorado and UNL pulling up the rear. Kansas and Kansas State do not have wrestling teams.

The meet starts Friday with the semifinals and ends Saturday with championship matches.

In the last 14 years, ISU, OSU and OU have taken the top three spots in the meet. The last team to break this stranglehold was Colorado when they placed third behind the Cowboys and Cyclones in 1964.

Iowa State with a 16-1 record and Oklahoma State with a 15-1 record are expected to be the top two competitors for the Big Eight title.

Iowa State is the defending conference and NCAA champion.

The Huskers, with a 4-6 record, stand the best chance of winning an individual title with junior Court Vining in the 158-pound category. Vining, co-captain of the team, has a 22-9 record on the season. His toughest competition will come from Kelly Ward of Iowa State. Ward has a 27-1 record.

Intramural fraternity league led by Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Sigma Alpha Epsilon will defend its 5-0 record in next week's Fraternity League A intramural basketball playoffs.

Gale Wiedow, intramurals director, said his rankings of UNL intramural basketball teams have not changed since last week and that Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SAE) still is in second place behind the independent league's Top of the Tower team.

SAE team captain Jim Meyer said he had seen Top of the Tower in action during the marathon tournament in December and that he has a healthy respect for the independent team.

"I think they're far and away the best team in the university intramurals. They deserve to be ranked No. 1," Meyer said.

He said Steve Graham, a 6-foot-6-inch member of the fraternity who probably would have played center for SAE, is playing for Top of the Tower instead. SAE's center is 6 feet 4 inches tall.

SAE makes up for its average height with good rebounding, Meyer said. Rebounding and shooting helped the team win its last three games. In the first halves of those games, SAE trailed by eight to 10 points.

Meyer said SAE is a "second-half team"

SAE has a "pretty good chance" of winning the fraternity division, according to Meyer. He said the members of the team have played together for two years and play in other tournaments outside UNL intramurals.

Meyer said he has been dissatisfied with the referees at intramural games. He said at the last two games more fouls were called than he had ever seen, but that the team members tried not to let questionable calls bother them.

The Huskers will counter with All-Big Eight guard Brian Banks. Banks, named to the UPI All-Big Eight team earlier this week, is averaging 14.5 points a contest.

Center Carl McPipe, averaging 15.7 points a game and 7.9 rebounds a contest earned honorable mention All-Big Eight honors.

Other UNL starters include forwards Terry Novak and Curt Hedberg and guard Bob Moore.

Tip-off from Kemper Arena is scheduled for 7:05 p.m., with broadcasts on KFAB, KFOR and KLIN.

Conference champion Kansas will battle Kansas State at 9:05 p.m. in the other semifinal contest.

"The only problem is that I'm tired of studying all year long," said Paustian, who carries between 15 and 18 hours a semester. She said she had no problems with grades, but does have doubts about the worth of summer classes.

"I don't get as much out of them because everything is crammed into such a short space of time," she said.

Frank Hallgren, director of the Career Planning and Placement Center, said students who graduate early are not at a disadvantage.

"It is just a question of how they want to handle their education," he said. Job-wise, three-year students really aren't any different than four or five.

It's all in how you perceive the time span you want to complete a particular goal in."

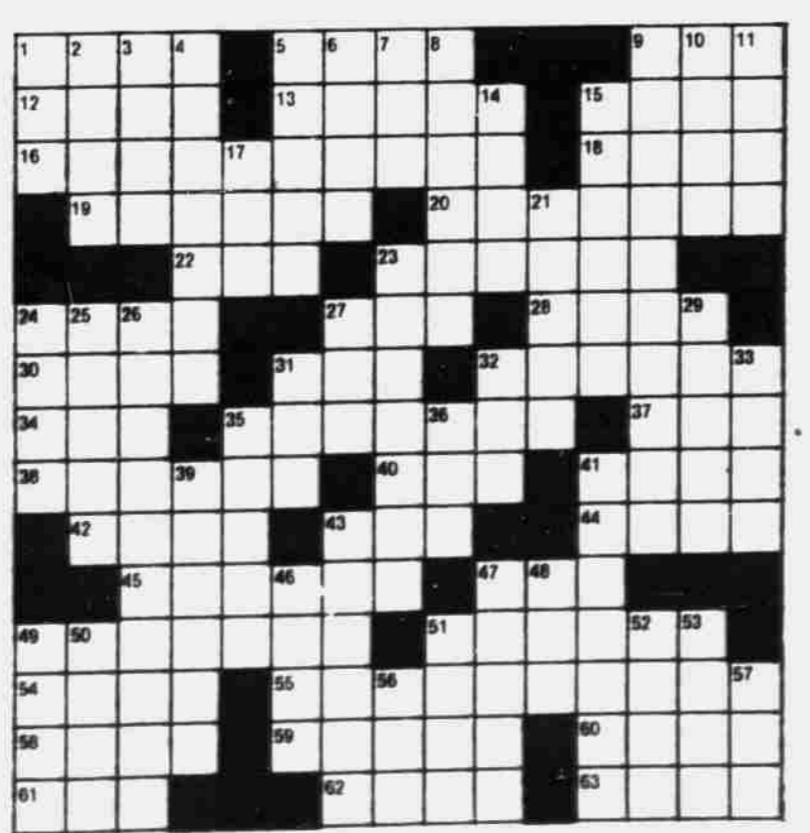

Hallgren said the decision to work quickly depends upon the student's ability.

"Some people can go through an intensive set of summer courses and do very well. Some can't," he said. "It's simply a reflection of how an individual is organized."

B-Week generates profits for college

The profits from B-Week 1978 were presented at the College of Business Administration faculty meeting Tuesday by the CBA Student Advisory Board.

CBA Dean Gary Schwendiman accepted the $400 check for the CBA Improvement Fund from Mark Buss, CBA Student Advisory Board president and Margaret McCandless, B-Week chairperson. The CBA Improvement Fund is a fund of the University of Nebraska Foundation. Programs and speakers which are not a part of the college's regular budget are financed through this fund.

According to Buss, the profits were made from the $75 fee charged to each business participating in B-Week.

Campus police checking 'watts' wrong with lights

UNL students walking home from night classes may be reassured to know the lamps lighting the way are checked regularly for malfunctions.

Jay Thody, assistant director and design specialist for the UNL grounds department, said University Police report any lighting malfunctions to the maintenance department.

"There are some areas which have not been reviewed in the last year that perhaps should be," Thody said. "But I don't believe there are any areas that are serious problems."

Thody explained that University Police and the maintenance department share responsibility for lighting. The police are responsible for parking areas and maintenance for the landscaped campus areas, he said.

Students last month voiced to police fears of assault and robbery in poorly lit areas, according to Loretta Vanis, student assistant on fourth floor Smith Hall.

Vanis received a letter from the police stating that all but one of the Area 3 parking lots are checked for lighting malfunctions. Area 3 lot between 16th and 17th streets, and Y and Holdredge streets is a temporary lot. It is not lit or paved because UNL plans to build several buildings there, according to the letter.
