

Outdoor crew practices advantage of Texas trips

The UNL crew made good use of their spring break by doing outdoor rowing at the University of Texas in Austin.

According to Frank Sands, UNL crew coach, the temperature in Austin last week was between 75 and 80 degrees. He said the men's and women's varsity and freshmen team members rowed twice a day. The trip to Texas lasted from March 16 to 25.

Sands said the Nebraska team had the water all to themselves and that he saw improvements during workouts.

"There's a good chance every (UNL) crew should finish in the top six in the country," Sands said. He said the men's and women's varsity teams each had lost only one team member from last year.

The crew had hoped to compete against Oklahoma on the way back from Austin, but the weather there was not good enough for rowing, Sands said.

The crew also might be rowing on Capitol Beach this spring if the owner of the lake grants permission. Sands said Capitol Beach is 800 to 1,000 meters longer than Oak Lake, where the crew usually practices. He said practices may continue in the new indoor tank of the weather is bad.

The tank will be dedicated Saturday at 1:30 on the crew's Press Day, with a banquet following the dedication.

Jack Frailey of Boston, whose knowledge of crew is noted across the nation, will attend the dedication.
