Coffee chairman jailed

Mexico City - Fausto Cantu Pena, former chairman of the Mexican Coffee Institute, and five other men were behind bars Tuesday awaiting trial on charges of smuggling eight million pounds of coffee into the United States and evading $10 million in taxes.

Idi has happy feet

Kitgum, Uganda - President Idi Amin, sporting a blue safari suit and ascot, delighted a crowd of local tribesmen by taking up a spear and shield and joining traditional dances to the beat of drums.

Nazi exhibit to be rescheduled

Lawrence, Kansas - An exhibit of Nazi memorabilia, hastily closed four hours before it was to open, can be rescheduled, the University of Kansas has announced.

At one point during the May Day celebration, Amin also jumped on a bicycle pulling a sickbed on wheels and pedaled around a grassy field.

Hospital money waste studied

Chicago - Sloppy hospital buying practices annually waste nearly $664 million in tax money, congressional investigators say.

Anti-theft devices required

Washington - It would be harder to steal a car under a new rule proposed Tuesday by the Transportation Department.

Describing the situation as "almost unbelievable," Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., told a news conference Monday that a General Accounting Office study of purchasing at 14 Seattle hospitals found that the hospitals paid widely ranging prices for identical goods.

The rule would require vehicles to have such burglar-proof devices as special ignition wires to prevent a car from being started without a key, hood latches that can be released only from inside the car and rounded door-lock mechanisms that prevent a door from being opened by poking a coat hanger through a window crack.

A medical supply company sold morphine tablets for 11 cents each in quantities of 700 and increased the price

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration asked for public comments on the proposal by July 31.

A UNL engineer, known as a pioneer in the development of solar heating systems, has been granted $110,000 from the U.S. Department of Energy.

Dick Bourne, associate professor of construction management, will study the use of membrane-lined containers in storage of hot water produced by solar collectors.

Bourne said he believes the value of solar heating systems already has been proven. He added that the costs must be reduced to compete with conventional heating systems.

Gary L. Smith, associate professor of life sciences has been awarded $46,700 to continue research of growth in normal and neoplastic cells.

The National Cancer Institute has awarded the money to UNL for Smith, who has been researching the subject for four years.

Smith has been a UNL faculty member since 1974.
