Reading course speeds at UNL

Although speed reading recently has come into vogue with the advent of certain commercial classes being offered around the country, the UNL speed reading program has been in existence since the end of World War II.

At that time, the federal government gave money to universities to start speed reading classes and UNL was one of the recipients.

Kay Felton, who has been teaching the course for eight years, said she believes there is a basic need for this type of class.

She expects a "relatively good" turnout, and said that she thought more students would take the class if they received credit for it.

The course is not at all like the Evelyn Wood speed reading program, she said, which "emphasizes astronomical speeds like 4,000 words per minute, which is not truly reading."

The UNL course emphasizes comprehension, study skills, and vocabulary improvement. Students are taught, for example, how to read a textbook, how to take notes, and how to study effectively.

The course also can give students a "shortcut method to save time, and write a term paper in a well-organized manner"

Although the registration for the course officially closed September 5, she said there might be room for more students. The next session starts on October 23.

Do you want to fly?

Face it you've always wanted to fly! Most of us remember that feeling and for a lot of us it has never gone away.

You're in luck. Air Force ROTC can set you winging. Our Flight Instruction Program (FIP) is designed to teach you the basics of flight and includes flying lessons in light aircraft at a civilian-operated flying school.

The program is an EXTRA given to cadets who can become Air Force pilots through Air Force ROTC. Taken during the senior year in college, it is the first step up for the cadet who is going on to Air Force jet pilot training after graduation.

Air Force ROTC also has a scholarship program to pay for books, fees, and full tuition, along with $100 a month. This is all reserved for the cadet who wants to get his life off the ground... with Air Force flying.
