Union Task Force wrestling with internal conflict of views

By Brenda Moskovits

Members of the Nebraska Unions Services and Facilities Task Force spent much of their first meeting Friday voicing conflicting opinions about the group's duties.

The task force also was addressed by a representative of Touche Ross and Co., certified public accountants who are conducting an audit of the unions.

The task force's charge, handed down by Richard Armstrong, vice chancellor for student affairs, is twofold; first to consider alternatives in conducting a needs assessment survey of the union, and second serving Armstrong as advisers while the survey is implemented.

Also addressing the group was James Van Horn, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and Chairman of the Fund B study committee.

Task force members Ira Dolich, chairman of the marketing department of the College of Business and Bob Simonson, a graduate economics student, took opposing sides on what the group should do.

Dolich said he felt that the needs assessment should have been done before Touche Ross conducted their audit, so the firm could figure alternatives into their cost figures.

Simonson disagreed, saying that the Touche Ross audit should be completed before the task force begins measuring needs.

Glen Schumann, task force member and coordinator of residence hall administration, said the two functions, measuring consumer needs and auditing management and cost are separate and will be brought together later in formulating the action plan.

Armstrong told the Daily Nebraskan that the Union Board will be responsible for integrating the two.

Jack Bowerman of Touche Ross told the group that the firm would be winding up their investigation in the next two weeks and will issue a report by October 15. The firm is investigating the unions' cost area (labor, operating costs, equipment costs and renovation and expansion costs) and its support bases (student fees, state funds and internally generated funds), Bowerman said.

Van Horn told the group that the fund B study committee, composed of faculty, students and staff members, has administered a questionnaire to the major Fund B users, which include the union and another survey to be a representative group of students. The surveys are now being compiled by the UNL Bureau of Sociological research, he said.

Armstrong suggested three options in conducting a needs assessment of students, faculty and staff: hiring a professional college union group out of Minneapolis who began an evaluation last year which was discontinued, hiring a professional consultant as suggested by UNL Chancellor Roy Young, or using university resources such as the Bureau of Sociological Research or business college students.

The task force has $15,000 to $20,000 available for needs assessment, Armstrong said.

Now there's a Tampax tampon designed to meet every need

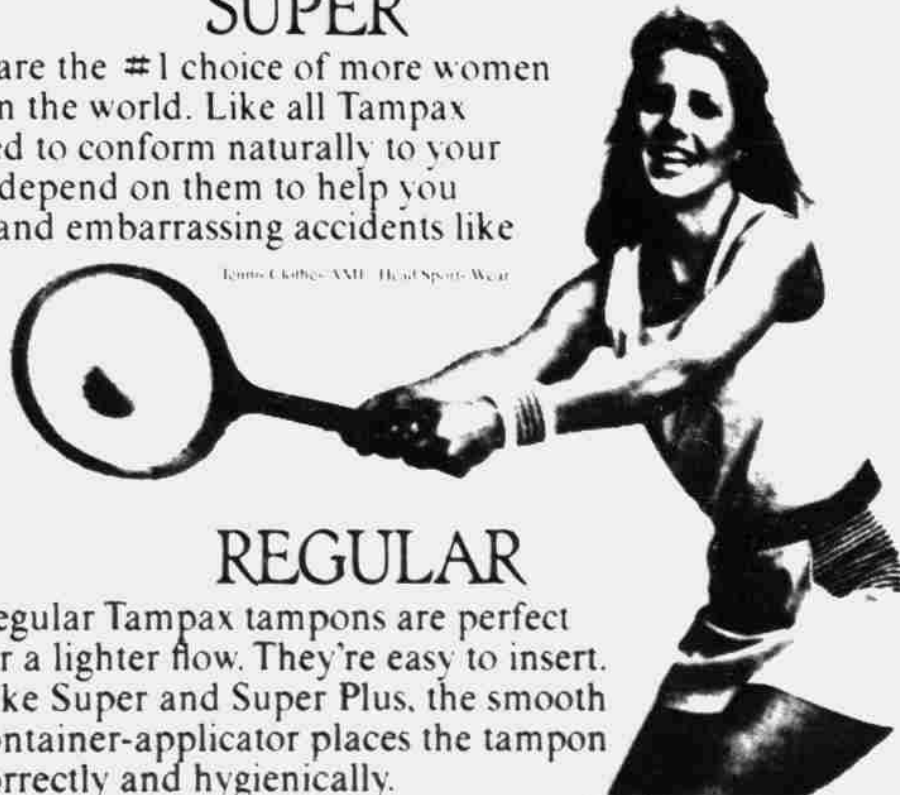

SUPER PLUS

Super Plus Tampax tampons are ideal for heavy flow days because there is no tampon that's more absorbent or more comfortable. With the extra protection Super Plus tampons provide, you may never again need the help of a pad. When your flow is not as heavy, taper off to Super or Regular Tampax tampons.

SUPER

Super Tampax tampons are the #1 choice of more women than any other tampon in the world. Like all Tampax tampons, they're designed to conform naturally to your inner contours. You can depend on them to help you avoid menstrual bypass and embarrassing accidents like leakage and staining.

REGULAR

Regular Tampax tampons are perfect for a lighter flow. They're easy to insert. Like Super and Super Plus, the smooth container-applicator places the tampon correctly and hygienically. Your fingers never touch the tampon. Unlike tampons with plastic applicators, both the tampon and applicator are flushable and biodegradable.

Tampax tampons now give you even more freedom of choice.
