

Score board plugs to greet the fans

A birthday greeting to your aunt Erna won't be flashed across the scoreboard at a Big Red game, but the public address system and scoreboard will be used to plug any university activity within reason, according to Don Bryant, sports information director.

Activities by organized UNL groups, such as musical theatre productions and charity fund raising projects are eligible for announcement. Bryant said he makes the final choice.

This week's game will be the first time message requests have not gone directly to Bryant's office, he said.

The Office of University Information is collecting and coordinating requests to make the service more accessible, he said.

Hal Graves from university information, said the office has received about eight message requests for the Oklahoma game.

"There have been some requests for birthday wishes, but we can't get into the personal messages," Graves said.

Bryant said space for personal messages cannot be sold because of the contract with the scoreboard sponsors giving them sole advertising rights.
