Coach Osborne, the Cornhusker football team, and our Athletic Department, and the University of Oklahoma, should all justifiably, be proud of their performances and attitudes regarding this game. Unfortunately, there are some people who have no reason to feel any pride in themselves because of their actions.

Reject Orange Bowl

May I inject a somber note in the midst of the jubilant reverie that sweeps our fair campus? Since the hard-fought victory over the fumble-prone Sooners I have heard and read numerous proclamations concerning the Orange Bowl. An invitation to the Orange Bowl would be a tremendous honor and tribute to an excellent team. Might I suggest an action fitting such an excellent team?

Reject the invitation.

The Orange Bowl is a prestigious event; it is also located in Florida—a state which has failed to ratify the ERA. The Orange Bowl, and attendant activities will contribute to the coffers of oppression. Miami has already started to feel the economic tourniquet tighten, as more and more organizations refuse to distribute their vacation dollars to those who refuse to recognize the equal status of women. Is the number 1 Nebraska football team up to joining in a hurculean battle; where the results are not so clear cut and the goals are measured in human dignity won or lost? Or will this be the team's "fumbled" opportunity?

Dare dumb idea

I attended the Nebraska-Oklahoma Game on Nov. 11 and witnessed something that disturbed me. I anticipated that the goal posts would be pulled down if Nebraska won due to the very special occasion that it was.

I feel it was dangerous and in poor judgment for the police to try to prevent it on the south end after allowing the excited crowd to tear the north-end one down. I realize the University of Nebraska has an investment in the goal posts but they have a greater investment in the police and students.

While the crowds behavior was justly criticized on some counts, I feel the move to save the south end zone goal post was dangerous, interrupted by too many as an "I dare you" and should not have been attempted.

Classy team

My heartiest congratulations to you and your excellent football team on your victory over our beloved Sooners. You played a great game and certainly deserved to win. We always know that when playing Nebraska, we play a class team. May the rest of the season be as good for you.

Down here in Oklahoma, there is no team we would rather lose to than Nebraska. But don't swell up too much. There is also no other team we would rather beat than Nebraska!

Misrepresentation in paper

I really hesitate to place myself in the same category as right wing "responsible journalism" freaks. The members of the Daily Nebraskan do, though, need to take a little more care in checking over just what they represent as "facts." In particular, whoever is responsible for the invention of the titles for articles should get his/her head out of the Andromeda galaxy, or wherever it's currently drifting and try to reestablish some sort of link between story headings and their content.

Last week two articles in which I figured were published in the Daily Nebraskan and both were totally misrepresented by their titles. I realize that these titles were supposed to grab the reader's attention and admittedly they did grab mine, but only because I wondered just when I had said anything remotely resembling them.

Just for the record, let me say that my kung fu club does not stress brick breaking and that I do not believe that marriage is unnecessary in today's society. Somebody on the staff of this paper may break bricks and be totally anti-marriage; I, however, do not and am not.

Column relief

"And so bodily labor which even after original sin was decreed by Providence for the good of man's body and soul, is in many instances changed into an instrument of perversion; for from the factory dead matter goes out improved, whereas men there are corrupted and degraded." (Pius XI)

It has come to our attention that the Monday article "UNL Affairs Need Athletic Efficiency" has departed from the Michael Gibsonian tradition of beginning and ending an article with irrelevant quotes. Is the Daily Nebraskan responsible for pressuring said Michael Gibson to delete said quotes of irrelevancy? What repercussions are potential "quotees" faced due to breaking from tradition? Is Michael Gibson being sued for slander or defamation of character? The list is endless.

The students of UNL (as we always do) demand to know!

In conclusion, we would like to quote Michael Gibson quoting George Bernard Shaw, "reasonable men try to adapt themselves to the world. Unreasonable men persist in trying to adapt themselves, and so all progress depends on unreasonable men."

Less than human

If the attitudes reflected in the Friday, November 10th edition of Fathom Magazine are an accurate description of the way the majority of UNL students think, it is indeed a sad and disturbing commentary.

It seems that openness, "honesty" and communication are more to be valued than love, compassion and plain human decency. The conjugal act that should bring two people together in mutual love and respect has been degraded to an animalistic act that serves nothing but self-gratification. I am fearful that if we as students continue to tolerate the advertisement of sexual immorality and sexual perversion as acceptable behavior, we will become a society that is less than human.
