

Team's confidence builds with surge

By Kathy Chenault

Armed with an arsenal of strong, confident players and a "gut feeling the team will do good," UNL Volleyball Coach Terry Pettit will lead his team to the Women's National Volleyball Tournament next week in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The team members, apparently masters in the art of finishing strong, have come from a mid-season record of 14-17 to win 20 games against four losses and according to Pettit, things look good for the national tourney.

"The team has played outstanding ball the last several weeks and I'm very optimistic about our trip down to nationals. In fact, I have a feeling we are going to make a strong showing," Pettit said.

Confidence helps

He said one thing the team has benefitted from is the confident attitude the players have maintained throughout the year.

"The girls have felt that as a team they can play with anybody," Pettit said. "While we have strong individuals, they know their success comes as a team. They also know they need to feel that individually they are better players because of the player next to them."

Part of the reason for the late season surge by the team has been the development of the often overlooked setters on the team, Ann Haberman and Lori Melcher, Pettit said.

"Some people who watch us play realize our strength in attacking at the net, but may overlook the job our setters do," Pettit said. "They play confidently and relate well with the team. They have the personalities to motivate and how they do usually coincides with how the team does."

Tough opponents

In the field of known competitors in the upcoming tournament are four teams the Huskers have played this season. Among those, the Nebraska team has defeated Florida State, lost three close games to Texas A&M and dropped matches to Texas-Arlington and Utah State.

Assistant Coach Russ Rose believes with a little luck in the draw and with emotional, motivated play, the team will be able to avenge those losses.

"We've got to go down there knowing anything is possible. Otherwise, with our record there wouldn't be much reason in going," Rose said.

"In my opinion, volleyball is a game of emotion and momentum. If we have those we can play with anyone," he said.

The team will leave for the three day tournament in Tuscaloosa next Tuesday.

Bowl ticket lottery ends

Today is the final day to purchase lottery applications in the student lottery for Orange Bowl tickets. Lottery applications are available at the athletic ticket office in the South Stadium Building, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Only full time students are eligible and there is a limit of one ticket per student ID. Groups will be limited to six.

Tickets are to be paid for when picked up and the cost is $12.50 per ticket. The winning numbers will be published in the Daily Nebraskan Friday along with pick-up information.

Personal checks will be accepted and should be made payable to the University of Nebraska. No checks will be accepted for more than the amount of the ticket price. Checks must also carry the student's Lincoln address.

There will be no refunds after the ticket has been picked up. Duplicate orders will be cancelled.
