

Residents develop a taste for wine; beer still favorite

Although Nebraskans still favor beer more than any other alcoholic beverage, residents are developing a taste for wine, according to the executive director of the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission. Executive Director Terrance Micek said consumption of wine in Nebraska was up 10.6 percent in 1976-77. Figures for last year indicate that Nebraskans drank 38 million gallons of beer, compared to 1.6 million gallons of wine and 2.6 million gallons of distilled spirits or hard liquor.

Although figures aren't available for this past year, in 1976, Nebraska ranked 18th in the nation in consumption of beer. In comparison, Nebraska ranked 38th in the country in consumption of wine, and 31 for other liquor. Even though Nebraska ranks high in consumption of alcoholic beverages, revenue from those beverages puts Nebraska near the bottom of the list. The ranks 46th in that area.
