our conference meet next week. We will get a chance to use people here and there that we wouldn't normally use," Wilson said.

"We should put out some good performances, but we are handicapped without the use of indoor facilities such as those at Nebraska. The team is always a little slow this early, but I'm expecting good effort and competition for them," he said.

Wilson said his team looks good in the field events but is weakest in the mile where injuries have plagued the team.

The two main question marks for the Shockers Saturday are Don Duvall, who placed 6th in the national meet last season with a 25'11 3/4" long jump and Rich Dreiling, who is the Missouri Valley conference defending champion at the high jump at 6'10". Duvall is out with ankle problems and Dreiling has a case of the flu.

The Huskers have already qualified nine people for nationals. Qualifiers are: Scott Poehling in the 600, 880, mile relay, two mile relay and distance medley, Mark Fluitt in the mile run, two-mile relay and distance medley, Brian Dunningan, two mile relay, and distance medley; Ray Mahoney, mile relay, and distance medley; Pat McKenzie, mile relay; Randy Brooks, 60 yard high hurdles, mile relay; Everton Da-Costa, mile relay; Tim McCashland, two-mile relay; and Bryan Ness, mile relay.

UNL leads

Nebraska is also leading the Big Eight in seven events this week. Mark Fluitt is top in the mile (4:05.56); Randy Brooks is first in the 60-yard low hurdles (6.75); Poehling is leading in the 600 (1:09.60), and 880, (1:49.54); and the Huskers are leading in the mile relay (3:11.66), two mile relay (7:33.5) and the distance medley (9:46.6).

NU Head coach Frank Sevigne said he is pleased with his team so far.

"We are performing real well right now, if we can keep everyone healthy for two more weeks we should be in good shape going into the conference meet. We are getting a lot of people qualified for the NCAA meet and that is always a good feeling.

"This meet against Wichita State and Colorado State is the last real tune-up for the Big Eight so I hope we will get some good performances."

The meet is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. with the field events at the Bob Devaney Sports Center Track. Running events are set to start at 2 p.m.

UNL freshman gains national fame in a single bound

By Kirk Wolgamott

UNL freshman Sharon Burrill is leaping to national recognition as one of the country's outstanding women high jumpers.

With a leap of 6 feet, Burrill is tied for second place nationally, according to sources at Track and Field News magazine. Burrill made the jump this weekend at the Wisconsin Invitational.

The national leader is Debbie Brill, an independent from New York state, who reached the top position with a 6'1" jump in the AAU Melrose Games in New York City last weekend. Another independent 6-foot jumper, Paula Girvin, also competed at the Melrose Games, a source from Track and Field News said.

Burrill is used to national prominence. She held the national high jump record for high school athletes with a jump of 6'1".

"This is really nothing new, I've done it before. I went 6'1" last April and since then I haven't gotten close. That jump this weekend felt real good, I think I can do it again," Burrill said.

No goal in sight

Burrill said she doesn't want to set her sights on any particular goal.

"I have no idea what I can do. I really hate to try and predict. I might not be able to live up to it if I did and then I would feel bad. I do just as well as I can.

"I guess I got that philosophy from my dad. He gave it to me right after I qualified for the USA - USSR Junior meet. He told me that since it was an international meet I should just be happy I got there.—that I should go ahead and do the best I could. I feel the same way about college," Burrill said.

Competition is a major factor in attaining the heights necessary to reach national goals, Burrill said. In the high jump, the competition is over whenever the person in second place misses three consecutive times at a height.

"When someone else jumps a height past 5'8", I do better," Burrill said.

"When everyone else goes out at 5'4" I have to go by myself and that's a lot harder.

Needs competition

"Usually everyone is out by my first jump. I need the competition to force me to work harder," she said.

Coach Carol Frost said, "It is nice to have someone leading the conference in the high jump. That's probably where our surest points are."

"The Wisconsin meet served the purpose we had intended it to. It gave us a chance to see our girls in different events, ones that we had not seen them in before," Frost said.

"We went into the meet very low key since it wasn't scored. It gave us another look at ISU (Iowa State) and the way they are thinking about placement."

The next action for the Lady Huskers is the Big Eight indoor meet this weekend at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.

Along with Burrill, the meet will feature Kansas sprinter Sheila Calmese, who is undefeated in the 60 and 300 yard runs both indoors and outdoors in the Big Eight and is ranked in the top five nationally in both the 100 and 220 outdoors.

Big Eight competition

Debbie Vetter, Iowa State's premier miler and the defending AIAW national champion in the mile; Lee Ballinger of Colorado, who placed second in the AIAW meet in the 800 meters last year; and Cecil Hansen, Oklahoma's shot-putter who placed in the top six at last year's national meet will also compete.

"By what's on paper, we look real strong. The field is our strength, although we have potential everywhere. There is excellent competition, but we don't feel like we should be shut out anywhere.

"We have a chance to be champion if we perform well in every event. ISU is too strong to allow us to make any mistakes. No one has beaten them or even come close for the past two years. KU looked strong at the start of the season, but I don't think they are as strong as us. They will be real tough in the sprints and hurdles," Frost said.
