Begin criticizes U.S. stance on Egypt

Washington—President Carter, frustrated, impatient and already supporting key Egyptian demands, opens new Mideast peace talks Thursday night with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

The outlook for wrapping up a treaty did not appear bright as Carter prepared for what he says will be "a frank discussion of the issues."

Before flying here, Begin criticized the United States for supporting Egyptian proposals he said "were totally unacceptable to Israel."

gained unauthorized access to top secret material.

The Journal also quoted the unnamed investigators as saying that the Boeing People handled the classified information in such a way—transmitting it over a normal telephone line—that "Pentagon officials believe it probably was intercepted by Soviet intelligence agents."

In Seattle, Boeing spokesman Don Brice said there would be no immediate comment on the Journal story. Defense Department spokesman Thomas Ross, in Washington, said he could not discuss the matter because it was in litigation.

Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution, the Journal said.

Modest reorganization

Washington—President Carter, yielding to anticipated political opposition, Thursday announced modest reorganization plans that would transform the Interior Department into a bigger Department of Natural Resources.

In the second of two plans that will go to Congress, Carter also proposed to consolidate domestic economic development programs in the Commerce Department.

The president's decision capped two years of bitter battles among Cabinet officers and top White House aides over who would control programs in these areas.

He also called on the United States to work to change Egypt's positions on the remaining issues.

"The American delegation should think again and change their attitude," he said before boarding an El Al flight to London and New York. "I believe it is the duty of the United States to convince the Egyptians to change their attitudes."

Begin was to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland in the late afternoon and immediately begin talks with Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance at the White House. Further talks with both men are scheduled for Friday.

Security suspicions

New York—The Wall Street Journal said Thursday that Pentagon investigators assert several officials of Boeing Co. of Seattle violated national security restrictions and
