Perhaps those who attended Rabin's lecture about the peace prospects in the Middle East were stunned when he tried to describe the Middle East conflict as being a unique conflict in the whole world. Before we make our comment about this uniqueness, we would like to remind you of the story of the man who murdered his victim and came to participate in burying and eulogizing him. And the story of the man who stole and then participated in tracking down the thief. That is exactly what Yitzhak Rabin was doing.

He tried to make every person believe that the heart of the conflict in the Middle East is the rejection by all of the Arab countries of the existence of Israel. Until this point, it seems really a unique conflict. Hence, the question now is how reasonable is this rejection of the Arab countries?

To every simple-minded person, the problem is self-evident. Israel is a small country, surrounded by 18 Arab countries who want to push her into the sea.

According to this argument, we should be sympathetic and support Israel because of its vulnerable position. This emotional type of appeal is exactly why we've been hearing for the last 30 years. And that's exactly how Rabin and his Zionist regime misled the whole world.

Let's look back at the history of the Zionist movement, Rabin and his associated initiated the Zionist movement immigration to Palestine and convinced Jewish citizens in every country to believe that, according to their Bible, they had a homeland in Palestine.

This movement worked hard to encourage Jewish immigration into Palestine during the British mandate and after the creation of the state of Israel. By driving the original Arab citizens out of their homes and land, the Zionists, succeeded in increasing the population of Jews in Palestine and announcing their state.

We would like also to comment about Monday's editorial written by Anne Carothers, in which she accuses the Arab and Iranian students of interrupting and annoying the audience and the speaker. There were several Americans who made outbursts when confronted with Rabin's blatant lies.

We hope now we are to be perceive the uniqueness of this conflict and who created it. What Rabin was saying was not a surprise because for him and his Zionist colleagues lying, cheating and stealing are a way of life. By skirting the main issue involved in the Middle East conflict, he illustrated this tradition. He ignored completely the fact that there are people who are living now as refugees waiting for the time when they will be allowed to return to their homes.

It was clear that Rabin attempted to avoid answering as many questions as possible by wasting as much time as he could by talking around the few that were posed. We think it is about time that American citizens stopped buying the emotional appeals put forth by Israel and become aware of the facts in the Middle East conflict.

Rabin, in stating that Israel won the four wars by itself, downplayed 30 years of military and economic support from the American government. He ignored about one-and-a-half million Palestinian refugees living in tents. He skirted the major issues and bypassed the heart of the Middle East conflict—this very unique conflict.
