Rape requires empathy—feminist

Although rape is one of the fastest growing crimes in America, it has the lowest arrest and conviction rate of any crime, according to a New Jersey clinical psychologist. Margaret Heller, 32, will speak at the Nebraska Union Ballroom today and Friday at 3 p.m. on "Rape: A Community and Personal Crisis."

Heller is the founder of a women's center in Keyport, N.J. It was the first center of its kind to receive a federal grant for mental health care for women.

Heller, who describes herself as a feminist, will receive her doctorate in clinical psychology from Columbia University this fall. She will be in Lincoln this week meeting with the Women's Resource Center, Planned Parenthood and the Lancaster Commission on the Status of Women.

Rape centers

Heller's experiences with rape crisis centers come primarily from her work at the women's center in New Jersey. She said she will emphasize the seriousness of rape, the importance of community rape services and discuss rape legislation during her stay in Lincoln.

"Rape is the fastest growing crime," Heller said. "It is alarming that while rape is increasing, other crimes are decreasing."

Heller also said rape is an act of brutality and should not be considered as a sex crime.

"It is a crime of aggression against women," she said. In the act of rape, a victim is brutalized in two ways. The first way is by the rapist and the second is by society "that claims to protect the victim but instead ridicules her and disbelieves her."

Lincoln prime spot

Heller said Lincoln is a prime locality for rape because of the campus area.

Heller said she would also emphasize the role of the police department and community services in her talks. "Most rapists feel they will get away with the rape," Heller said. "Rape has the lowest arrest and conviction rate of any major crime."

"I'm opposed to treating rapists as mental patients," she said. "Rape is not basically a sex crime. In fact, most rapists don't even ejaculate during the crime. Rape is a power trip, not some uncontrollable sexual urge."

Heller said she will also talk about attitudes of the community towards rape victims.

"I want people to understand what it means to be raped. It is devastating to an individual," Heller said.

When do you say Budweiser?

- Before ...
In between ...
Or after I dive into this big, meaty Submarine.

Actually anytime's the right time to say Budweiser. And when you do, you've really said it all.
