

Regents to debate student fee increase

By Bob Lannin

A $2.50 increase in student fees has been recommended to the NU Board of Regents by Richard Armstrong, vice chancellor for Student Affairs.

The regents will discuss next year's student fees at their meeting this Saturday.

The proposed increase from $66.50 to $69 represents the first increase in student fees in three years. During this time inflation increased by 20-25 percent, according to a report sent to the regents.

Proposed allocations to Fund A fee users are $39,502 to ASUN, $32,900 to the Daily Nebraskan, $57,607 to the University Program Councils, and $15,000 to Cultural Affairs Committee.

Fund B proposals are $1,261,848 to the Health Center, $36,000 to International Educational Services, $146,160 to Recreation Programs, $600,000 to the Nebraska Unions, and $733,000 for Debt Service.

Per student costs per semester to Fund A fee users will be 91 cents for ASUN, 76 cents to the Daily Nebraskan, $1.32 to UPC, and 34 cents to Cultural Affairs Committee.

Fund B costs per student per semester will be $29.69 for the Health Center, 83 cents to IES, $3.36 to Recreation Programs, 13.79 to the unions, and $18.00 to Debt Services.

Total Fund A allocations per student are $3.33 and $65.67 for Fund B per student allocations.

ASUN increase

A report sent to the Business Affairs Subcommittee showed the ASUN allocation to be an increase of $4,002 or 11.3 percent over their 1978-79 allocation. The report said the increased allocation was "to facilitate student government's desire to establish a more meaningful presence on the campus."

The Daily Nebraskan allocation represents a $1,900 decrease over the 1978-79 allocation.

"The decrease is based primarily on ASUN's concern with the losses incurred by the paper's Fathom supplement," the report said. Less frequent publication would realize savings, the report said.

The $9,757 increase in UPC's allocation came about through increased funding for non-political speakers and additional funding for women's and ethnic programs.

The Health Center allocation represents an increase of $84,598 or 7.2 percent. National health care costs are ahead of this level, the report said, but "through prudent management and increased user fees" the health center could "live within" the budget.
