

Kelly . . .

"This is crooked as a dog's hind leg, and everybody knows it," Kelly said during the noon recess. Concerning those who argued that the motion to reconsider was out of order, Kelly said, "They can say any damn thing they want."

Not only had Luedtke refused to honor the motion to reconsider, he would not rule on whether the motion was valid, thus denying Kelly the opportunity Marvel later gave him to override the chair.

Kelly attacks

When Neligh Sen. John DeCamp moved to suspend the rules on LB221, Kelly began his attack. DeCamp offered the motion because Kelly refused.

"I'm being sandbagged by the liquor industry, now represented by Sen. DeCamp," Kelly said. DeCamp withdrew the motion. When the chair would not entertain Kelly's motion to reconsider, Kelly may have lost the support of Marvel.

"If the motion to reconsider is not taken up by the speaker, he has effectively killed LB221 for this year," Kelly said. After taking up the motion, ruling it out of order and being overruled, Marvel abstained on the final vote to reconsider.

Marvel had defended himself earlier, saying that he had voted for LB221 before, and was not trying to play any games.

Marvel was overruled on a 32-15 vote, but three senators, Daye Newell of Omaha, Frank Lewis of Bellevue and Gerald Coch changed their votes to Kelly's side for purposes of reconsideration.

Newell, in fact, moved to reconsider the vote to overrule the chair, but Marvel ruled that motion out of order, and Newell did not challenge it.

Marvel ruled the motion out of order following a half-hour recess of the Legislature, during which former senators were introduced on their special day to visit the capitol.

The two delays in the later afternoon—Newell's motion and the introduction of the former senators—may have caused just enough time to pass for Kelly's reconsideration attempt to fail.
