in the Big Eight surpassing Colorado which was at the top last year. Cuca said that the increase would "price people out of the educational market if costs continue to rise." "Gentlemen, where is it going to end?" he asked.

Raun willing

However, Regent Robert Raun from Minden said he was willing to pay a tuition increase for his three children attending UNL.

"As a farmer everything I buy has gone up. I'm in favor of the hike. We'll raise the money and then economize," he said.

Richard Kennedy, student regent from the University of Nebraska Medical Center said he also supported the tuition increase.

"If you cut the budget, you cut specialties. We have to keep good personnel at our university and only by retaining them can we pull in nationally rated professors," he said.

She said she will require the meeting to be recorded on tape. She said a previous meeting with NU President Ronald Roskens was reported wrong because no one had recorded what was said.

Davidson said she will be happy to meet with university officials as long as some of her requirements are met.

Davidson said she would not attend a meeting with the administration on one side and she on the other.

If there is any evidence contrary to her change Davidson said she would be glad to hear it.

"If there is any evidence contrary to her charges, hear it," she said.

According to Davidson no one has yet asked Dobson to come up with hard proof to defend himself.

"No one has yet asked Dobson for solid proof, and to me it is so logical and simple," she said.
