

East Campus now has CAP office

Student organizations on East Campus no longer need to go to City Campus to register events, attend workshops, or get advice on various problems.

Campus Activities and Programs established an East Campus satellite office on the third floor of the East Campus Union last year.

"In terms of our first year, we are pleased with the traffic flow," said Martin Wood, director of the CAP East office.

Wood said for years all East Campus organizations either survived on their own or had to go to the City Campus office.

"We still need to make people aware that we are here and what we can do for them," Wood said.

The office can sponsor workshops different groups might want, and they can advise on most concerns an organization might have.

A calendar of events for both campuses will be available outside the office to avoid overlapping activities.

The Daily Nebraskan also has an office in the East Campus Union, along with other student organizations in the CAP office. Anyone with story ideas or news items can leave messages at that office.
