Omaha exposition to deal with energy

The Mid-America Exposition '79 will be in Omaha on Sept. 22 & 23, it was announced Wednesday.

"This is the first Exposition of its kind in this area," said Jack Flynn, JMJ Feed Mills, president of the Renewable Energy Trade Association, sponsors of the exposition.

"Many people are confused about our total energy situation," Flynn said. "The Energy Exposition will provide a unique opportunity for exhibitors to bring their energy message to the consumer."

Ben Preis of the Sheetmetal Worker's AFL-CIO said, "Energy is everyone's business. The Energy Exposition will be the place for every type of business, industry, or organization to tell what they are doing or can do to solve our energy problem," said Ben Preis, of the Sheetmetal Workers' AFL-CIO.

"The these of the Energy Exposition will be Energy Conservation," said Allen Ziebarth, president of Earth Shelters, Inc., another member of RETA. "The purpose is to demonstrate that energy conservation does not mean doing without, but rather doing most efficiently with the energy that is available," said Ziebarth.

Energy-related businesses and organizations have received information regarding the Energy Exposition, said Debra Stangl, president of Energy Inform, Inc. of Omaha, coordinators of the exposition.
