Anyone interested in trying out for the Nebraska junior varsity basketball team should report to the Bob Devaney Sports Center basketball court at 9 p.m. on Oct. 15. For any questions, call Tom Baack (472-2263).

The UNL soccer club, Wednesday night, defeated the York Panthers 6-0.

The club, now 2-1 for the season were boosted by goalie Paul Hornby's first shut out of the season.

The club now faces the University of Kansas Saturday after the Nebraska-Kansas football game at Memorial Stadium.

Six teams, including four Big Eight teams, will compete in the meet, Kansas, Kansas State, Missouri, and Nebraska, along with Kearney State and University of Nebraska at Omaha will run in the weekend meet.

Nebraska Coach Carol Frost said Kansas State and Kansas are the favorites, with KSU having a slight edge.

"There should be good competition with four Big Eight teams in the meet," she said.

Frost added that she hopes the team finishes close to Missouri and ahead of UNO and Kearney State, both young teams.

"It's doubtful that we (Nebraska) will finish very high with the two Kansas schools running," she said.

"We don't know much about any of the teams, but after competing against Kansas and Kansas State we know we're quite a ways behind them."

Frost said the three other Big Eight teams are competing in the meet to get a look at the track before the Big Eight Championships at Pioneer Park on Oct. 27.

Nebraska's best runner this year is Chris Hass according to Frost. She was the Husker's best finisher in both the Kansas and Iowa State meets. At Iowa State, Hass finished 14th overall and best for Nebraska.

Frost added that Tami Essington has been lost for the cross country competitive season because of injuries. According to Frost, Essington returned from the summer break with a bad knee and is undergoing treatment.

Frost said Essington may be able to resume running and training soon, but she definitely will not be competing in cross country this season. She added that Essington will probably be sound for the indoor-outdoor track season next semester.
