

Fraternity reactivates an escort service

Women wary of walking alone at night can take advantage of an escort service offered by Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

According to house member Greg Bentz, the service started last year, but not many women took advantage of it, primarily because they didn't know about it.

"If a girl needs an escort, she can call the house and leave her name, where she wants to be picked up at and at what time and we will send someone from the house," Bentz added.

Corky Kumpost, president of Sandoz Hall, said the student government at Abel-Sandoz is trying to get an escort service established for their complex.

Kumpost noted that Abel-Sandoz has had an escort service in the past and that it has worked very well.

Karen Kuzmarski, residence director at Pound Hall, said that the Cather-Pound-Neihardt Complex does not have an established escort service.

"We are working with the UNL police on slide presentations which advise women on how to avoid being attacked and what to do if they are attacked," she said. The slide presentations soon will be shown on the Pound floors.

Kuzmarski emphasized that women should not walk alone at night if at all possible.

"Invite a friend to go with you or make arrangements for someone to escort you home from a class. Stay in well-lit areas and don't loiter along the street—keep your mind on where you are going," she said.

Elaine Green, director of the Cather-Pound-Neihardt Complex, advised women not to be on campus alone at night and to take precautions to avoid attack.

Regents . . .

Another happened in the spring of 1978. Jane Fonda appeared on campus, which prompted the local Young Americans for Freedom to send letters to state conservatives who, in turn, pressured the regents who cut off student funds for speakers. No amount of outrage could change their minds.

Put these three together, and you have a Board of Regents that lives a double life. When dealing with students, they're the stern granite pillars supporting civilization as we know it. When someone outside the university knocks, any wind can bend weak reeds.
