

Spikers' 19-game streak snapped

It wasn't a good weekend for the Nebraska volleyball team as the Huskers finished with a 2-3 pool record and failed to advance to the single elimination round in the Southwest Missouri State invitational.

The Huskers defeated Michigan State and Alabama but lost to Texas-Arlington, Oral Roberts and Illinois State to break the Huskers' 19-match win streak. The Huskers are 32-4 on the season.

The Huskers had beaten both Texas-Arlington and Illinois State earlier this season.

UNL volleyball coach Terry Pettit said his team didn't play "mentally tough."

"We let too many balls hit the floor and we didn't play together as a team," Pettit said. "We didn't block or play defense very well either."

Pettit said the team had a good week of practice last week, and that he was "surprised" with his team's performance.

He added, however, that he expects the team to bounce back for the next meet, the Big Eight championships at Stillwater Friday and Saturday. The Huskers will be trying for their fourth consecutive title.

"I think the team was disappointed with the way they played and wants to make a comeback at the Big Eight meet," Pettit said. "We're just going to have to regroup, make some adjustments, and start playing together better."

U.S.-Korea match set for tonight

International volleyball comes to the Bob Devaey Sports Center tonight when the U.S. Women's Olympic volleyball team plays the Korean national team.

Warm-up is scheduled for 7 p.m. with game-time set for 8 p.m.

The Lincoln match is part of an eight-city tour the U.S. and Koreans are now involved in. The U.S. held a 5-0 lead in matches going into the Springfield, Mo. match Sunday night.

The organizing chairman of the Lincoln match, John Walton said the match will have one of the best offensive teams in the world, the U.S., pitted against the best defensive player in the world, Korea. Korea won the bronze medal at the 1976 Olympics.

"There should be some long rallies and many exchanges without points being scored," Walton said.

"The Koreans have surpassed the Japanese in playing defense, and if they are on top of their game, the match should be a crowd pleaser."

The player to watch for the U.S., according to Walton, is 6-5 Flo Hyman.

"Without a doubt, Hyman is the most dominating figure in volleyball today," Walton said. "She can demoralize another team because she can spike above the opponent's block."

The match also will feature local star Julie Vollertsen, from Palmyra. Vollertsen, 20, is the youngest member of the U.S. Olympic team that will compete in Moscow in the 1980 Olympics.

Proceeds from the match will go to the U.S. Women's Olympic team to help pay expenses at Moscow next year.

Interviews, counseling offered at UNL Career Planning Office

They sit in padded chairs decked in pressed suits with their legs crossed and their hands reaching to make sure their ties are on straight.

Staring at the spotless walls, they wait. "Next," a voice calls.

A college student unfolds from his stiff position and walks to the room where he is interviewed.

The interview is one of more than 7,900 that take place each year in the Career Planning Office, Union 230.

On-campus interviewing is only one of the services offered by the center, according to Frank Hallgren, director.

"It's a place for information," he said. "It's available to both students and alumni."

Included at the center is a library that supplies information about types of employers, annual financial reports of companies, geographical information, federal government reports and graduate and professional school outlines.

Hallgren said the center also administers more than 2,000 aptitude and placement tests for graduate schools and businesses each year.

Fees are charged for nationally administered tests by the various agencies which sponsor them, and not the center, he added. "The fee is different, depending on the test. Usually it ranges from $15 to $20."

The center also offers group and individual counseling for postgraduate planning, resume writing and interviewing, Hallgren said.

"We help a student with a resume and then sometimes arrange for an interview on-campus," he said. Some of the arranged interviews are off-campus.

The names of people who list themselves with the service are kept in a file available to employers, Hallgren said.

"Most of our information is how-to-stuff, like how to be interviewed and write a resume."

The center is funded by regular university funds, he said.

Campus grounds improvement is topic of landscape forum

A landscape forum, held by the UNL Grounds Department will give students and faculty a chance to discuss the campus grounds.

The forum will be Thursday, at 11 a.m. in Manter Hall and will be open to the public.

According to Bud Dasenbrock, director of grounds, the forum will give all UNL members an opportunity to state problems and offer suggestions for improvement of the city campus grounds.

Dasenbrock said conflicts about sidewalk space during class changes, especially concerning pedestrians and bicyclers, is one matter to be discussed at the forum.

He also said the forum would serve to educate the public as to what has been done in campus landscaping and future development plans.

The city campus landscape has been improved with the planting of 11 new trees and soil cultivation around Love Library, Dasenbrock said. He said that the UNL community should be informed of these improvements to help preserve their campus.

Dasenbrock said Kim Todd, campus architect, has been the motivating force behind campus landscape improvements. Todd has devised what Dasenbrock called a "comprehensive plan" for campus landscaping.

This plan includes long range designs for planned and orderly growth. Dasenbrock said this long-term type of planning is vital to maintaining the landscape.

Dasenbrock said Todd's job was also instrumental in identifying further building sites, green spaces, parking facilities and transportation routes on the city campus.

Dasenbrock said he hopes the subject of night lighting on campus will arise. He said the grounds department needs suggestions for night lighting improvements, while still maintaining an efficient energy level.
