

Faulkner lecture series is kicked off with Simon

Former Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon will deliver the first E.J. Faulkner Lecture at UNL on Friday. "Simon is the first of a number of distinguished figures in the fields of business and economics we will be bringing to UNL to present E.J. Faulkner Lectures," said College of Business Administration Dean Gary Schwendiman.

Expenses of the lectureship program are underwritten by a $100,000 gift from Woodmen Accident and Life Company in recognition of the long and distinguished service of E.J. Faulkner to the health and life insurance profession and to the Woodmen Company, of which he was president for 40 years.

Faulkner, a 1932 graduate of NU, has been the recipient of many national awards, including the Insurance Man of the Year in 1956.

He has served as a member of the Advisory Council on Social Security, as a consultant to the White House Conference on Aging, as first president of the Health Insurance Association of America, as president of the American Life Convention, and as a trustee of the American College of Life Underwriters.

The lectureships are part of the program of the newly established UNL College of Business Administration's Center for Study of the American Business System.

"The lectures are designed to supplement the efforts of faculty in educating students and the community-at-large to think clearly and make sound decisions about the future direction of the American business system. We are pleased that William E. Simon is the first lecturer, in light of his distinguished career in business and in government service dealing with the national economy," Schwendiman said.

Simon was secretary of the U.S. Treasury Department from 1974 to 1977, after having served for a year as deputy secretary. He headed the Federal Energy Office in 1973 and 1974. He is currently a newspaper executive, serving as chairman of the Board of The Tribune, New York.

Simon's lecture, which is free and open to the public, will be at 10:30 a.m. in the Nebraska Union Ballroom. His discussion will involve current economic conditions in the U.S. and the outlook for the future.

Project sweetens budget

Volunteers in last weekend's Honey Sunday raised about $14,500 for the Lincoln Association for Retarded Citizens, according to drive coordinator Mike Spurgin.

Spurgin said the 400 cases sold was about 100 cases under his goal.

About 1,000 persons in Lincoln sold honey door to door, Spurgin said, adding that nearly 800 of the volunteers were members of UNL fraternities and sororities.

Boy Scouts, members of Women in Life Insurance and association employees comprised the remainder of the volunteers, he said.

Pat Rowan, assistant executive director of the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens, said statewide results are not yet computed because all returns are not in.

Omaha's Honey Sunday is not until Nov. 11, he said.

Rowan said money raised will be used to support local programs benefiting retarded citizens. According to Spurgin, Lincoln programs include a retarded citizen advocacy program, pilot parents, a group that trains parents of retarded citizens to help others who give birth to retarded children, a summer vacation program for retarded persons and a Jubilee Art Festival.

In addition, Rowan said, the funds will be used to educate the public about mental retardation and maintain local associations for retarded citizens.

Nebraska's Honey Sunday program originated in Grand Island about 22 years ago, Rowan said. It is the only statewide program of its kind and has received national recognition, he added.

The Central Intelligence Agency is looking for men and women who want a career with a challenge and rewards to match

Not everybody can work for the Central Intelligence Agency but you may be one of them. It takes intelligence, skill, initiative, a willingness to take charge — even the ability to run risks, or work in unusual and uncomfortable places. Or it takes the ability to piece together information from many sources and build it into a picture of what's happening in the world.

Right now we need people with these backgrounds:

- Computer Sciences
- Economics
- Electronic Technology
- Engineering (aero, electric, electronic, mechanical, nuclear)
- Foreign Area Studies
- Languages (Russian, Eastern European, Middle Eastern, Oriental)
- Mathematics
- Photographic Interpretation
- Physics

Some of these opportunities are in the Washington, D.C. area, others are abroad or offer foreign travel. All places you within an elite group of very special people. Graduate or undergraduate degrees in the appropriate academic field is necessary, and practical work experience is a big help. Fringes are liberal: insurance, retirement, leave. You have to be an American citizen.

If you're a venturesome person who would't be content with an ordinary job, send resume to:
