The projections were made, according to the report, under the assumption that no prior fiscal constraints would be placed upon the growth of the university budget and that state general fund allocations would grow at a rate commensurate with program needs.

Although the university tentatively has asked for a 15 percent increase in funding for fiscal 1980-81, Gov. Charles Thone has indicated he will not approve any budget with an increase of greater than 7 percent.

The report states that its 1980-81 projection is not consistent with the formal 1980-81 budget request submitted by the regents to the Legislature. The report explains that the workpapers resulted from efforts begun before the 1980-81 budget request was formulated and that it is based on prior budgetary constraints being placed upon the university, although the actual budget had a 15 percent ceiling placed upon it.

The report states that UNL anticipates a need to upgrade numerous programs through the addition of new faculty and staff. Included in the staff increases are 13 new faculty members in the College of Arts and Sciences, 15 for the College of Engineering, and nine for the Business College.

Teachers College is requesting 13 additional positions, the Home Economics College requests four and Architecture three.

UNL also anticipates the need for improvement in the internal operations within the library system, the Law College, and the University Museum. Library and Law

College needs are based upon an inflationary effect on the costs of books and periodicals, while the museum cited a need for six additional staff members.

UNL also stated an "absolute need" for improved funding for the Teaching Council, the Research Council, computer usage and equipment purchases. UNL additionally requests funding for improved community service projects as a response to a perceived high priority placed upon community service by Nebraska citizens.

The study projects an increase of 790 additional staff members from 1979-1984, including 154 new members at UNL. The increases would raise the total number of staff members for NU to 9,183 and the total number of staff members for UNL to 3,075.

The largest staff increases at UNL would be in the colleges of architecture (20.9 percent), business (16.4 percent), engineering (20 percent) and home economics (10.1 percent).

The report was released to deans and members of the faculty senate executive committees on the three campuses Nov. 28.

It was not to be released to the press until Dec. 10 but was released early in response to a Lincoln Star article that appeared Nov. 30.

In a press release response to the article, Hansen emphasized that the study is a "set of workpapers" which under no circumstances is to be "construed as a plan" and they have not been endorsed by the Board of Regents.

Hansen said the papers "will be modified and updated as new information is available."

Snow drifts plow over a budget cut

Snow removal on the UNL campus will not have its budget cut, even with the tightening of the overall UNL budget, because it is an essential item, the assistant to the director of grounds said.

Jay Schluckebier said "We can't afford to have people falling down and hurting themselves. Snow removal is a life-safety factor."

Schluckebier said that the Grounds Dept. has established a priority list for areas to be cleared of snow first, in the event of a storm.

"Both campus streets and major commuter lots will be cleared first," Schluckebier said. "We usually send out the major equipment at 12 midnight and then the hand scoopers at about 4 a.m."

The decision to cancel classes is made by the chancellor, but the Grounds Dept. is asked for its opinion if the campus is accessible, Schluckebier said.

For information about University closings, snow removal and parking conditions, Schluckebier said that a "snow central" number can be called by students to get that information.

The Grounds Dept. and the city of Lincoln contract with ACCU-Weather, which calls Lincoln weather reports to which additional information is added locally, he said.

The Snow Central number, 472-1234, is on line for assistance 24 hours a day.

DO YOU WANT TO FLY?

Face it . . . you've always wanted to fly! Many of us have had the feeling . . . and for some it has never gone away.

If you have that feeling, then you're in luck. Air Force ROTC Flight Instruction Program (FIP) is available to you. It's designed to teach you the basics of flight through flying lessons in small aircraft at a civilian operated flying school.

The program is an EXTRA for cadets who can qualify to become Air Force pilots through Air Force ROTC. Taken during the senior year in college, FIP is the first step for the cadet who is going on to Air Force jet pilot training after graduation.

This is all reserved for the cadet who wants to get his life off the ground . . . with Air Force silver pilot wings. Check it out today.
