

KSU . . .

best player too in Rolando Blackman," said Husker Acting Head Coach Moe Iba.

Blackman, a 6-6 junior guard, is the Cats leading scorer, averaging 16.4 points a game while hitting 57 percent from the field. It is matching up with last year's all-Big Eight selection that concerns the Huskers since the tallest guard the Huskers have is 6-3 Ray Collins.

"Whoever's on him (Blackman) will have their hands full," Naderer said.

Husker JV Coach John Hammond scouted KSU's win over Iowa State Wednesday night and said K-State is comparable in talent to Missouri, a team that handed the Huskers their only loss, 84-63.

"It's a normal Kansas State team," Hammond said. "Although they have Blackman, they have no dominating player, and good depth coming off the bench. They're also a good shooting team."

Statistics back up what Hammond said. Two other Wildcats besides Blackman are averaging in double figures. Sophomore forward Tyrone Adams at 6-6 is averaging 11.2 points a game while 6-7 sophomore forward Ed Nealy is scoring 10 a game. Nearly also is KSU's leading rebounder, averaging nine a game.

As a team, K-State is shooting 49 percent from the floor, but four of their starters are shooting 50 percent or better.

Hammond said another player that could pose problems for the Huskers is KSU center Jari Wills. Wills is averaging nine points and six rebounds a game.

"He's not a big player (6-7), but he rebounds well and has good touch from 15 feet," Hammond said.

K-State also is the conference's top defensive team, giving up 63 points a game.

"They play a 3-2 zone a majority of the time, and they play it very well," Hammond said. "They'll pressure you a lot and it's very difficult to get the ball inside on them."

UNL miler files suit alleging discrimination

Husker miler Mark Fluitt has filed a suit in U.S. District Court stating that he is a victim of sex discrimination because of differing eligibility requirements between men's and women's athletic regulations.

Fluitt competed in one indoor meet as a freshman, but was then forced out of competition by shin splints. Fluitt said that a woman in a similar situation would be eligible to compete another year.

The suit cites the AIAW handbook as saying that a woman who is injured before competing in more than 25 percent of the school's events has not used a year of eligibility.

NU Head Track Coach Frank Sevigne refused to comment.

Conference rules deny male athletes equal protection under the law compared with female athletes, the suit said. Fluitt requested a permanent injunction against sections of the eligibility rules keeping him off the team. However, he will not compete for the Huskers Saturday.

He said not competing another year will keep him from being eligible for the 1980 Olympic trials and will prevent him from defending his conference title in the mile.
