

'Eight is enough' Sellentin: Fowler's time is up

By Pam George

Just as the popular television title indicates, Jerry Sellentin says "eight is enough."

Sellentin, who recently announced his candidacy for the Legislature from the 27th District, was referring to Sen. Steve Fowler's eight years serving that Lincoln district.

"I think after eight years I would like to see a change," said Sellentin, director of human resources at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

"I think I would be able to do a better job than Mr. Fowler," Sellentin said, "because he has just had eight years in politics and no business experience."

Sellentin questioned Fowler's ability to look at budgets, profit vs. non-profit situations and getting "more for less."

"I think that is the big point of this campaign," Sellentin said. "Looking at Mr. Fowler's eight years and then at my background."

Memberships

Sellentin's activities have included a long-time membership in the American Society for Personnel Administration, of which he is now vice-chairman, member of the Nebraska State Personnel Board and the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

As an undergraduate at UNL, he was business manager of the Daily Nebraskan in 1958-1959. Sellentin obtained a doctorate in community and human resources from UNL, and currently teaches classes on organizational behavior and human relations management.

Sellentin said his position as director of human resources is probably the most beneficial experience he could offer as a candidate.

"I have to look at employee concerns and management concerns and try to come to a decision that is most beneficial to productivity," he said.

KUCV praised for program changes

KUCV-FM calls itself "Lincoln Fine Arts Radio," and according to director Eric Graham the station's philosophy is "one of making the arts available to a broad spectrum of the community."

Graham, along with Nebraska Gov. Charles Thone, commended the Union College FM station Tuesday in a press conference at the state capitol.

KUCV, 90.9 on the dial, was licensed by the Federal Communication Commission to Union College in 1967. The Tuesday conference was in recognition of several operational changes made recently that increase the station's ability to broadcast "the best of classical composition," Graham said.

The changes, all effective Thursday, include:
-an increase of power from 10 watts to 18,200 watts.
-an increase of broadcast hours from 6 a.m. to midnight weekdays. Saturday and Sunday air time will be from 7 a.m. to midnight.

-a new program featuring local news. Entitled "Mid-Day," it will air noon to 1 p.m. weekdays.

-affiliation with British Broadcasting Corporation. Three daily news broadcasts, at 7 a.m., noon, and 7 p.m., will bring "very unbiased world reports" to KUCV, Graham said, giving listeners an "outside source of foreign affairs."

-a dial change from 91 to 90.9 FM.

The decision to campaign for the unicameral seat was made because of his concern for the economy and how legislative bills are handled, he said.

"I sense Mr. Fowler has become a very strong political boss, and we don't need that," Sellentin said. Sellentin said he wants to discover his district's concerns by conducting a poll.

"I want to become more involved, get a feel for what we need," he said. "I also want to look at the whole (legislative) process of how bills are introduced."

Because he is involved in many activities, Sellentin said the first to go, if he is elected, would be teaching classes at UNL.

KUCV, 48th and Prescott Ave., owned and operated by Union College, is non-commercial and non-tax supported. Graham said the community has made it possible to stay afloat financially through its contributions.

Thone also praised the station for its self-supporting operations.

"Union College is to be commended for this new service which comes to our community, I might add, without the aid of the taxpayers' money," Thone said.

The programming at KUCV encompasses live concerts performed by professional musicians, Lincoln Symphony concerts, the Nebraska Chamber Orchestra, and other local musical talent.

Vandalism spree damage is $500

Several counts of vandalism that occurred between Saturday and Sunday evenings resulted in nearly $500 damage, according to Bob Fey, a UNL police investigator.

Slashed tires accounted for the major portion of the damage, along with a smashed window, a smashed taillight and a broken CB antenna, he said.

The vandalism, which occurred, for the most part, near the Selleck quadrangle and the University Health Center, may have been done by the same person or group of persons, Fey said.

In a few of the cases, Fey reported, the damage was discovered by the officer on duty and the cars' owners were contacted.

He noted that tire tracks, evidently those of the suspect's vehicle, were discovered in some of the locations where the vandalism occurred.

UPC to receive fees if speakers balanced

The Union Program Council must provide balance when hiring speakers in order to receive student fees money, according to Mike Madcharo, chairman of the council's Talks and Topics Committee.

Madcharo said that if a speaker is hired to discuss a controversial issue, another speaker must be hired to give opposing viewpoints.

The NU Board of Regents eliminated student fees funding for Talks and Topics after the controversial Jane Fonda lecture in October 1977.

Madcharo said Talks and Topics again is receiving student fees, with the stipulation that it will present both sides of issues.
