

Bentz: Friday KU dual is Big Eight preparation

The UNL men's swimming and diving team will host defending Big Eight champion Kansas in a dual at the Bob Devaney Sports Center Friday night.

The Huskers are coming off a weekend which saw them defeat Oklahoma 71-42 at Norman, and have another meet against Texas Christian University at Fort Worth canceled because of poor weather and road conditions.

The Jayhawks have captured the Big Eight swimming title the last two years. Earlier this year, KU beat the Huskers, 71-42. The Jayhawks' well-balanced team is led by Steve Graves, last year's Big Eight Swimmer of the Year. Graves swims the breaststroke events and the individual medley.

Winning Friday's meet, although nice, isn't the Huskers' major goal, however, according to Husker Coach Cal Bentz. "You have to put the meets in perspective; this is only a dual. The upcoming Big Eight meet is more important, we feel. We hope to use this dual to improve our times in preparation for that meet."

The Huskers' main strength is diving. The divers have had things their own way in Big Eight competition so far, and should continue to, according to Bentz. "Our conference isn't as strong in diving as it is in the swimming events," he said, but added, "Of course I'm not saying that our divers, all of whom have qualified for the nationals, are not excellent."

Lance Green and Scott Hinrichs, who won the one- and three-meter diving respectively at Norman, will head the rest of the talented Husker divers.
