Bradley to bring talents to UNL baseball field

By Ron Powell

Mentioning the name Phil Bradley to Nebraska fans during the spring doesn't seem fair.

Husker football fans would just as soon forget Bradley. In 1978, Bradley quarterbacked the Missouri Tigers to a 35-31 upset win over Nebraska in the last regular season game and spoiled a Husker bid for a national championship.

Then, last fall, Bradley's arm brought the Tigers to within 10 yards of foiling another Nebraska shot at a national crown, but Missouri came out on the short end of a 23-20 decision.

The two-time All-Big Eight quarterback will be in Lincoln this weekend, but this time Bradley will be swinging a bat at Buck Beltzer Field instead of throwing passes in Memorial Stadium.

Bradley is the starting center fielder and lead-off hitter for the Tigers, who play the Huskers in a pair of doubleheaders here today and Saturday. Missouri, 32-9-1 on the year and 10-2 in Big Eight play, leads the Huskers by one game in the Big Eight Eastern Division and is ranked 13th in the country in the latest Collegiate Baseball magazine ratings. The Huskers, 36-10 and 9-3 in the Big Eight, were 26th in the poll.

Last year, Bradley, in his first collegiate baseball season, was the Tigers' starting right fielder, hitting .314 with five triples and five homers.

"I am in kind of a slump right now," Bradley says. "I started off the season hitting well, but the last two-and-a-half weeks, I haven't been hitting all that great."

A lot of players would like to have a slump like Bradley's, though. Coming into this weekend's games, he is hitting .326.

Although Bradley is better known for his football abilities, the chances are good that Bradley will be drafted in June's major league draft. Bradley said if he were drafted, he isn't sure if he would sign.

"There are many possibilities," Bradley said. "I am going to wait until the draft before I decide anything. I don't even know if I'll be drafted; I don't expect anything. Right now, I am not saying what I'll do."

Bradley did say that if he returns to Missouri next year, he will play both sports. But, when asked whether he might try to get in some of Nebraska's football scrimmage between games Saturday, Bradley replied, "I have no interest in football right now."

Although the Tigers are batting .335 as a team, assistant Husker coach Ron Johnette said Missouri's main strength could be their pitching. Missouri has a team earned-run average of 3.02.

The Tigers are expected to start Tom Heckman and Kurt Moody in today's doubleheader. Heckman, an All-Big Eight selection a year ago and an All-American candidate this year, is 7-1, including wins in his last six starts. Moody is 5-1 with a 1.90 ERA.

Saturday, the Tigers are expected to start Ron Mathis and Craig Fitzpatrick, both sporting 6-2 records for the season.

"All of their starters have a good ratio of starts to games completed," Johnette said. "I wouldn't say Heckman is the toughest pitcher we'll face all year. After all, we did beat him last year. But as a group, they're about the four toughest we'll go against all year."

Johnette added that "judging from the stats, it should be a tough competitive series." Nebraska as a team, is batting .324 and has an ERA of 3.25.

Friday, Nebraska will start Tim Burke, 6-4, and Ray Tromba, 3-1. The Huskers will start Cliff Faust and Steve Gehrke, both 5-1, on Saturday.

Poehling will miss Drake Relays

By Tad Stryker

Top-notch competition will rule at Des Moines when the Nebraska men's and women's track teams compete at the annual Drake Relays today and Saturday.

Steve Scott, former NCAA champion, will run in the 800 meter race, but Nebraska's Scott Poehling won't. Poehling is still hurt after a leg injury in last week's Iowa State dual.

"It's still sore," he said Wednesday. "I tried to work out, but I can't put any weight on it. Luckily, I've got three weeks to get ready before the Big Eight meet."

Women's Coach Carol Frost said that her team is in good physical shape, "except for a couple minor aches and pains."

"Julie Seaton has a slight hip injury and Norma Murray has been bothered by a minor hamstring injury for the past month," she said.

Frost said that a major concern would be qualifying the 4 x 100 meter relay team for the NCAA meet.

"They're just three-tenths off the NCAA qualifying standard," she said. "We haven't really run against anyone of any stature, and the competition this weekend could push us enough to do it."

Frost will be trying a new combination in the 4 x 400 meter relay.

"We're adding Merlene (Ottey) to that relay," she said. "I don't know what to expect there. Hopefully, we'll get a pretty good time."

Highlighting the Husker entries in the field events will be Sharon Burrill, winner of the high jump at Drake last year.

Men's Coach Frank Sevigne said he is satisfied with the progress his team has been making in the past several weeks. Any or all of the relays have a shot at winning, he said.

Because of Poehling's injury, freshman Mike Cielocha will run in three relays. Matt Minchow will be running the 110-meter high hurdles.

Randy Raymond and Mark Newton are the Husker entries in the pole vault. Sevigne said Raymond has been clearing 17 feet in the event consistently.

NFL linebacker Lee Kunz is in Chicago this weekend, Sevigne said, so Erik Korshoj will be the only Nebraska discus thrower. Jon Jones and Jeff Keeler are the triple jumpers, and Ken Drwal and Jon Post will throw the javelin.

The Olympic boycott won't have any ill effects on athletes' performances in meets like the Drake Relays, Sevigne said. "As far as I know, they're still going to have an Olympic trials, and that's always an incentive for good performances," he said. "It's a real honor to be seen as good enough for the Olympic team, even if you're not going."
