RHA OKs resolution supporting approval of Fund A allocations

By Diane Andersen

The Residence Hall Association passed a resolution Thursday supporting approval of the student fee allocations for Fund A which the NU Board of Regents failed to approve last Saturday.

Fund A provides money for the Daily Nebraskan, ASUN and the University Program Council. The resolution said "these organizations provide essential services to students and significantly contribute to the overall environment of the University."

ASUN senator Eric Torrison spoke to RHA before their vote, explaining that only $3.55 each semester from student fees goes for Fund A, which is "not much considering the programs we get."

Torrison encouraged students to write letters to their regents supporting the Fund A programs.

"If we don't all rally together, we're going to lose a lot of things," he said.

He said that if the regents do not approve the Fund A allocations at their May 17 meeting, the Daily Nebraskan may not be able to maintain its All-American status. Walpurgisnacht and Cornstock may not exist next year, the ASUN credit union and student legal services will no longer exist and the speakers program will suffer, Torrison said.

"Sure, a lot of them are controversial," Torrison said of the speakers. But, he added, UPC has been very careful this year to provide a balanced speakers program.

The RHA resolution stated that "RHA is in unified support" of the Fund A request and that the association asks the regents who voted against Fund A to reconsider their votes.

Corkie Kumpost, RHA president, said student leaders have planned a campaign to convince the regents that students want and need Fund A. This afternoon at Cornstock on East Campus, there will be a booth where students can pick up form letters to send to the regents supporting the fees.

Similar letters and information will be put in residence hall mailboxes and students will be encouraged to get their parents to write to the regents.

Kumpost said many parents can be contacted on Parents Day at some Greek houses this weekend. Letters will be sent to Nebraska newspapers supporting the Fund A allocations, he added.

Kumpost said copies of the resolution will be sent to UNL Chancellor Roy A. Young, the regents, the director of housing, ASUN and the Daily Nebraskan.

Damages near $1,000 in fraternity room fire

A fire which caused nearly $1,000 in damages swept through a bedroom in the Ag Men fraternity house late Tuesday night, according to Pete Sturmer, chief investigator of the Fire Marshall's office.

Sturmer said the fire, which began about 10 p.m., apparently was caused by a carelessly discarded cigarette.

A wall was destroyed completely, along with several books and papers belonging to a fraternity member, Sturmer said.
