Charles Klabunde stands beside one of his paintings. Klabunde's etchings, oil paintings, and pencil drawings are on display at Sheldon Art Gallery through July. Klabunde said several factors have influenced his work, including two "near death experiences. Drawing saved my life, and now drawing is my life. Drawing to me is what music is to a composer, a way of coping with reality."

Silent Mueller Tower will chime again this fall

Mueller Tower, the 31-year-old carillon, is getting ready for the fall football season at UNL.

Silent the past few years because inoperable chimes, Mueller Tower will receive a completely new electronic system, including a carillon of 49 chromatic bells and eight new tower speakers with solid state amplifiers.

The cost of the new Carillon is $19,000 financed by income from an endowed fund established with the NU foundation by the late Ralph Mueller, Cleveland, Ohio. Mueller is an industrialist after whom the tower is named.

At an original cost of $85,000, Mueller

Tower was dedicated in 1949 and, until a few years ago, chimed at class breaks, commencement exercises, honors convocations and after football and basketball games.

Harley Schrader, director of NU's physical plant said the carillon system should be installed by the first of August.

Richard Bennett, director of business services, said the new system will be able to play pre-programmed audio tapes of carillon music. These selections will include traditional Nebraska songs like "Hail Varsity," "Dear Old Nebraska U," and "March of the Cornhuskers."
