Week to feature celebrated alumni

A synthetic fuels expert, a university president and a network television producer are among nine UNL alumni who will return to campus for Masters Week, Oct. 29-Nov. 1.

Masters Week is an annual event designed to give students and faculty an opportunity to meet and talk with distinguished alumni. Masters Week is sponsored by the Innocents Society and Mortar Board, in cooperation with the Chancellor's Office and Student Alumni Board.

Activities planned for Masters Week include a 4 p.m. press conference at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, a reception at the Alumni Center Oct. 29, and a Chancellor's luncheon at the Nebraska Union Nov. 1.

This year's Masters include: Forrest L. Poska, vice president of Phillips Coal Co. and representative on the Synthetic Fuels Committee of the U.S. National Committee of the World Energy Congress and the American Petroleum Institute.

Gail Fullerton, president of San Jose State University, was a member of the UNL Department of Sociology in 1963.

Don Critchfield, television news producer from Miami. His most recent assignment was coverage of the Democratic National Convention in New York. He has worked in 10 countries including coverage of the Panama Canal Treaty negotiations, the Nicaraguan civil war and Israeli Prime Minister Begin's 1979 visit to Egypt.

Ruth Anderson, manager of the Gamma Spectrometry Facility at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Livermore, Calif. She has authored several articles on running and holds records for long distance running.

John Savage, vice president of the Leo A. Daly Architectural Co. Savage was recently honored by the Nebraska Society of Architects.

Dick Davis, manager of general administration for Northern Plains Natural Gas Co. of Omaha. Davis is a former professional football player.

Donald Novotny, division director of grain and feed for the foreign agricultural service with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Paul C. Schorr III, president of Commonwealth Electric Co. of Lincoln.

Ales J. Cochrane, president and chief executive officer of Hovland-Swanson-Cochrane.
