

Officials say job search should not be difficult

By Charles Vaughn

Three officials from the Student Employment Center say if students want jobs they should be able to find one without too much trouble.

Doug Severs, Gail Wheeler and Larry Apel of the Scholarships and Financial Aids office, say jobs are available.

"Your attitude has a lot to do with it," Severs said. "You have to be willing to put in some headwork."

"Think of your past experience. Ask yourself, 'who do I know who would know about jobs.' Read the help wanted ads, especially in Sunday's newspaper. Those types of things are what you should think about," Apel said.

Each program in the Student Employment Center is available to all students. To qualify for the Work-Study program a student must have financial need. The earnings range from $1,000 to $1,300 a year.

"Usually these students are also receiving other aid along with work-study," Severs said. Sixty-five percent of the money comes from the federal government. There are about 1,100 students presently on Work-Study earning from $3.10 to $5 an hour.

If students do not qualify for Work-Study then the On-Campus program is available.

"We help find the jobs on campus," Apel said. "We have a wage scale of 93 job titles that range from food service to research technicians. This is the same on Work-Study too. We figure there are 2,286 students employed on campus."

Students also can receive assistance finding an off-campus job through the Job Location and Development Program. "It is federally funded too. It's basically an offshoot of Work-Study," Wheeler said. "We find the jobs then post them for the students. Some examples are food service, clerical and retail, but we also have vision therapists, liquor store clerks and accounting jobs."

When is a good time to look for a job? "Beginning of the semester there are many openings," Apel said. "When students register they should leave a block open for work. A good block is in the morning to work in food service if you like to get up early."

"During the noon hours (11-1:30) there are many openings," Severs said. "If the student is not picky he can get a job easily."

Union sets its Thanksgiving hours

Operating hours for the Nebraska Union during Thanksgiving vacation have been set, according to Union Operations Manager Frank Kuhn.

The union will be closed from Thursday Nov. 27 through Nov. 30, resuming regular operating hours Dec. 1.

The union will close at 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 25. The building will be open Wednesday, Nov. 26 from 7:45 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. but the north and south information desks, the North Crib, Bakery, Deli, and the Colonial and Rec Rooms will be closed.

Kuhn said that the union will close early Nov. 25 because many students will have

Although there are no classes on Nov. 26, the union will be open because it is a university workday, he said.

Greyhound Bus line will provide bus service from R street door of the union Tuesday, Nov. 25. There will be no bus service from the union on Friday afternoon.

Buses leaving Nov. 25 will follow the regular Friday schedule, with the eastbound bus leaving at 3:30 p.m., and the westbound bus at 3:40 p.m.

Students wishing to travel on these buses should fill out reservation cards at the South desk in the union before Nov. 25.

Regents agenda announced

The NU Board of Regents will decide on proposed changes in the organization of the UNL Teachers College.

The changes would combine the Department of Elementary Education and the Department of Secondary Education into the Center for Curriculum and Instruction.

Also the Department of Educational Psychology and Measurements and the Department of History and Philosophy of Education will be combined into the Department of Educational Psychology and Social Foundations.

The regents will also be asked to approve the spending of $236,880 to make alterations in the Crib in the Nebraska Union. The money would come from the student fees replacement fund and facilities revenue bonds.

A plan for the building of the Alumni Center at UNL will be given to the regents.
