

Regents ...

The regents considered selling non-transferable student and faculty tickets at the full general public price, but the proposal failed.

"I think that we would be the only university that does not provide tickets to students at a reduced price," UNL Interim Chancellor Robert Rutherford told the board. He opposed any change in the policy.

The regents rejected a proposal to sell the tickets at a 25 percent discount and to allow students to resell their tickets.

Regent Robert Simmons of Scottsbluff said Nebraskans favor permitting students to sell their tickets.

UNL Chancellor Robert Rutherford said transferable student and faculty tickets would increase ticket scalping. The policy would decrease the number of tickets sold to the general public, he said.

Regent Robert Simmons of Scottsbluff said the present ticket policy makes "criminals out of a substantial number of our students." The current policy forbids students from selling their tickets.

But Regent Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln said few students scalp football tickets.

"I never see the evidence of that scalping," Schwartzkopf said. The board wastes time discussing football tickets continually, he said.

The board elected Regent Robert Prokop of Wilbur to be its 1981 chairman. Prokop—the only nominee—received seven votes in the secret ballot. There was one abstention.

The regents elected Regent James Moylan of Omaha as vice chairman.

In other action, the board refused to accept a contract offer by UNO's American Association of University Professor's President Bernard Kolasa.

In Kolasa's offer the AAUP would accept a 12.8 percent increase in wages and benefits. The AAUP's last offer asked for a 17.5 percent increase. The regents' final offer was a 10.4 percent increase.

Simmons accused Kolasa of attempting to bargain through the media. He called the offer "a totally inappropriate response (that) probably constitutes bad faith bargaining."

The AAUP will withdraw its offer Jan. 26 and declare an impasse, Kolasa said. The Commission of Industrial Relations would decide the contract if talks reach impasse.

Corrections

The Daily Nebraskan reported incorrectly Friday that Gov. Charles Thone's 8 percent pay increase recommendation for state employees was 10 percent less than the increase requested by the Nebraska Association of State Employees. The article should have read "ten percentage points less" because the NASE asked for an 18 percent increase, which is about 55 percent more than Thone's recommendation.

The Daily Nebraskan also reported that the federally funded National Direct Student Loan Program has been cut by $1 million. The actual cut was $100 million from $286 million to $186 million.
