

Crew...

At Big Eight schools, where crew isn't a major sport, the men's and women's teams are grouped. Shotkoski said the only schools that separate men's and women's crew teams are those where crew is financed by the university as a major sport.

"At UNL, we're a young team and we have to stay together to fund ourselves," Shotkoski said.

Shotkoski sees the cause of the controversy in the system, not in the team members.

"It's just how people see it or how they've been brought to see it," Shotkoski said.

Shotkoski said when the women go to the boathouse to practice, they encounter an attitude that they don't belong there.

"We should be able to be in the boat-house and feel like we belong there," Shotkoski said. She added the problem isn't in the men, but in the way they've been introduced to crew.

"It needs to be stressed that we need to work as one team," Shotkoski said. "We need each other. It's more fun to do things together, anyway."

Chi Omega sorority and Farm-House fraternity will host a wheelchair basketball "Tourn-a-thon" at the Men's Physical Education building March 6-8.

Sponsored by the Coors Brewing Co. and KBHL-FM radio, the marathon portion will last 48 hours from 3 p.m. March 6 to 3 p.m. March 8, with pledges being taken.

The entry fee will be $25 per team. Interested teams should contact Farm-House or Chi Omega.

Special celebrity teams representing KOLN-TV, the UNL football team,

Lincoln Jaycees, and KBHL-FM will face the FarmHouse/Chi Omega squad. All proceeds received from the combination tournament and marathon will go to the March of Dimes.

Steve Gotsche shot a 73 Monday to lead the UNL golfers to a one-stroke lead over Arkansas in the 11-team Houston Husky Invitational.

The Huskers hold a 298-299 edge on the Razorbacks. Rice is in third place with 304.
