Plans presented to defeat radial

By Kim Hachiya

Standing in the middle of a block at 21st and U streets that has been leveled in anticipation of the proposed Northeast Radial, a spokesman for a Lincoln group opposed to the April 7 radial referendum announced plans Tuesday for a drive to defeat the radial "once and for all."

Rich Sutton, president of the Clinton Neighborhood Organization, one of 12 groups aligned against the radial, read a prepared statement to a group of supporters and reporters about the formation of the anti-radial group known as Citizens Against Radial Expenditures.

Last fall the Lincoln City Council voted 5-2 to pursue the "no-build" option based on a federal environmental impact statement. Since then, local groups have petitioned to place the radial issue on the ballot for a city-wide vote.

"This is a kickoff event to let people know there is a grassroots effort to get the factors out about the radial," Sutton said.

"We question the proposed expenditure of homes and businesses, the expenditure of local and federal tax dollars. I stand here to dramatize the radial's devastating effect of 20 years of indecision.

"Would you build something here if you don't know what's going to happen to it later?"

Sutton said radial proponents say the road is needed to promote Lincoln's growth.

"We support growth with quality, not simply growth," he said.

Citing President Ronald Reagan's policy of "tightening the federal belt," Sutton said the proposed 75 percent federal funding for the radial may never materialize, yet planning continues that disrupts home owners and business planners.

Sutton declined to place a specific dollar amount on the project, but he said inflation will at least double the proposed costs by 1986, when the project is supposed to be started.

Sutton spoke next to a row of six cars parked in the lot, which he said dramatizes the impact six lanes of traffic would have on the effected neighborhoods and the new Malone Community Center.

Sutton said his group, which is operating on what he termed a shoestring budget, plans to distribute leaflets and yard signs to publicize its feelings.

He said he didn't want to predict the outcome of the election.

"Of course people directly impacted will turn out stronger than those who will not be losing homes. But this is a city issue. I just can't speculate on the reaction of south and east Lincoln. But I do believe that when people find out the actual costs, they will realize that we don't need this facility."

Sutton said CARE is mainly interested in forcing a final decision on the radial issue.

"We thought we had a decision last fall from the City Council. We need to come to an end on this, one way or another, so we can get on with our lives," Sutton said.

GLC-sponsored talks concern student group

Proponents and opponents to forming a State Student Association will meet in three debates, according to a member of the ASUN Government Liaison Committee.

The debates, sponsored by GLC, will give those supporting as SSA between 10 to 15 minutes to voice their opinions. Those against an SSA will be given the same amount of time.

An SSA is a state-wide lobbying body that would work on concerns to all NU campuses and state colleges. The issue of its formation is a survey question on the ASUN ballot. Student government elections are March 4.

The first debate is scheduled for today at 1:30 p.m. in the Nebraska Union main lounge. A second debate is scheduled for Friday at 2 p.m. at the East Union. The third debate will be March 2 at 8 p.m. in the city union.
