Huskies sweep doubleheader from Dana College

By Jeff Goodwin

Nebraska's baseball team swept a doubleheader from Dana College Tuesday afternoon at Buck Beltzer Field by scores of 7-3 and 12-0.

The Huskies jumped to an early lead in the first game by scoring two runs in the first inning. Mark Prior singled and scored on Roger Hill's triple. Hill scored when Steve Stanicek grounded out to the second baseman.

Dana came back to score a run in the second when John Schnaible singled and stole second. He scored on Mitch Lane's single.

Dana scored another run in the sixth to make the score 3-2. The Huskies scored five runs in the bottom of the inning to put the game out of reach. The big blow for Nebraska came on a grand slam home run by Mark McManaman.

Jeff Andeson came in to relieve Rick Evans and picked up the win for Nebraska, raising his record for the year to 6-1.

Nebraska got a strong pitching performance from Mike Vojtesak in the second game. He went all seven innings and scattered five hits.

Nebraska once more drew blood as they scored three quick runs in the first. Chris Chavez walked and stole second and then scored on Mark Prior's single. Hill then repeated his performance of the first game and hit another triple to score Prior. Hill scored on a ground out by Bill Hendricks.

The Huskies score two more runs in the second on a two run homer by Mark Prior. Nebraska also scored two more runs in the fifth and put the game out of reach in the sixth by scoring five runs. The Huskies collected six hits in the inning including a two-run double by Hill.

Vojtesak raised his record to 2-2 with the win.

Nebraska travels to Omaha today to play a two-night doubleheader against Creighton. The Huskies host Big Eight leader Missouri for doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday at Buck Beltzer Field. The first game starts at 1:30.

Junior college was 'perfect' for new Husker

By Bob Asmussen

Coffeyville, Kan., may not sound like much, but for Mike Rozier it was perfect.

Rozier spent 1980 football season playing for Coffeyville Junior College. He had been originally recruited by Nebraska but had grade problems and was declared ineligible. He signed with Coffeyville to get his grades up and to get some playing experience.

The 5-11, 215-pound running back gained 1,100 yards in what amounted to about six games. His play left Coffeyville Coach Dick Foster impressed.

"Mike's a super player," Foster said. "He's a super kid too. He was hurt for three games and he still gained 1,100 yards. It seemed he got better and better every week."

Foster is used to coaching good running backs. Five years ago he coached Dallas Cowboys running back Ron Springs. He compares Rozier favorably to Springs.

"Springs was a great junior college player," Foster said. "Mike had as good a first year as Ronny. I'd say he has the potential to be just as good as Ron Springs, if not better."

Foster said after signing with Nebraska out of high school, Rozier felt obligated to Nebraska.

Lasting decision

"Mike wants to go to Nebraska," Foster said. "Other schools wanted to get at him but Mike told me he didn't want to talk to them. He made up his mind and he was going to stick to his decision. That shows a lot of character. A lot of kids would have been tempted to look for something better, but not Mike."

Foster said Rozier's greatest asset was his strength. "For a running back Mike is very strong," Foster said. "He's not that big so he has to make up for that with superior strength. He came in here and worked real hard to build himself up."

Foster said the biggest adjustment for Mike was in coming to the Midwest from New Jersey.

"Mike felt homesick," Foster said. "He's adjusted now. The pace is slower and Mike really likes that."

Rozier echoed that feeling. "It's a big change," Rozier said, "but I'm really happy here. There's more to do in Camden (N.J.) but those things make you sway from what's important, like school."

Rozier's grade problem in high school has gone away since he's been at Coffeyville. The change of scenery has helped.

Studying is tough

"The atmosphere is good for me as far as school is concerned," Rozier said. "Getting used to studying was tough. Football comes easy but studying is a little harder."

Rozier wants to play I-back at Nebraska and has set lofty goals for himself.

"I see myself as the No. 2 I-back," Rozier said, "but I'm going to try and be number one. I want Roger Craig's spot on the depth chart."

Rozier said moving to fullback was not one of his favorite ideas.

"I want to run the ball," Rozier said. "I can block good enough to be a fullback but I don't want to be one."

Rozier feels he needs improvement in his blocking and pass catching. He played in the wishbone in high school and at Coffeyville which hasn't allowed him to catch many passes.

Rozier is happy with his decision to attend Nebraska. "I have no regrets," Rozier said. "I like the program, Coach Osborne is a great coach. The level of competition is very good. I'll have to work awful hard."

Rozier's ultimate goal is to play professional football. He doesn't view that as too lofty.

"I think I'll be able to play pro football," Rozier said. "I'm aiming to play in the NFL."

According to Foster, Rozier is capable of almost anything.

"He was the best junior college running back in the nation in 1980," Foster said. "Nothing he does at Nebraska or after that would surprise me. Mike Rozier is going to be a great running back."

No. 3' bowls from behind in win

By Ward W. Triplett III

Clutch shooting by Bill Peck and Dan Ogden led a team called simply "No. 3" to a 16-pin victory in the finals of the 1981 all-university roll-offs.

No. 3, so named according to team captain Jerry Leonhardt because no one took the time to think of anything else, had to come from behind to defeat D&S ZoZo's 1268-1242 in the wrap-up of the 30-team tournament.

To reach the finals, each team competed in a two-game series, with scoring aided by handicap. Peck, Ogden, Leonhardt and first-year member Bob Schutts marched through Monday's final eight by going past Big Red runner-up Chi Phi 1279-1274, and outlasting Husker League champions, the Tappers, 1297-1193.

The ZoZo's defeated the Big Red champions, the Luckenbach Outlaws, 1190-1098, then blitzed past the Collegiate League champs, the Forum, 1343-1138. The win was largely due to a second game that saw each ZoZo pick up eight or more marks, with Don Mays' 188 leading the way.

With a 52-pin handicap as an aid, the ZoZo's won the first game by 21. With Steve Kecks' opening double, they jumped out to an early lead in the second, but that faded until three ZoZo misses and three No. 3 marks tied the game at 19 marks apiece in the sixth.

By then, Ogden was following an earlier example by Peck and rolled four consecutive strikes between the fifth and eighth frames. Peck had strikes for the second through fifth. No. 3 took a 30-pin lead for the series by the end of the eighth.

The ZoZo's fought back with Scott Miller, Dennis Kottwitz, and Mays each striking in the ninth, but the Kegler League champs maintained the 30-pin advantage through the tenth and last frame. Peck ended with a 186 (171 average), and Ogden a 213 (146 average).

Al Starks' 412 in first-round action last Wednesday for the Agnetter's held up for the men's high series crown. Stark rolled a 241 in that series, but tournament rules disallowed him from winning both trophies. The Tappers outbowed the Forum in the consolation match to claim the third-place trophy.

Four Husker players included in pro draft

Four Nebraska football players were picked in the first six rounds of the pro draft Tuesday.

The New Orleans Saints started off the second round of the draft by picking defensive back Russell Gary. Gary will join former Nebraska assistant coach Lance Van Zandt who took a job with the Saints earlier this year.

All-American I-back Jarvis Redwine was the 24th pick of the second round. He was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings. Redwine played with the Cornhuskers the last two years after transferring to UNL from Oregon State. He was considered a top Heisman Trophy candidate last year until he suffered from some broken ribs in the Florida State game.

The final pick of the second round was Andra Franklin who was chosen by the Miami Dolphins. Franklin was a three year starter for Nebraska at fullback.

As expected, the first pick of the day was Heisman Trophy winner George Rodgers of South Carolina. Big Eight players picked in the first round were: David Verser (Kansas), Cincinnati; David Overstreet (Oklahoma), Miami; Keith Gray (Oklahoma), Pittsburgh; Howard Richards (Missouri), Dallas. The final rounds of the draft will be tomorrow.

Derrie Nelson, the 25th pick of the fourth round, was taken by the Dallas Cowboys. Nelson was a starting defensive end for the Cornhuskers for two years and an all-American his senior year.
