Marvelous Max exits as NBC opens union branch

Marvelous Max the electronic teller is leaving UNL, but his forefather Bank-In-The-Box will take over the job of handing out money to thousands of students this fall.

Gateway Bank moved out of City Union to a new location at 16th and P streets Aug. 17. The National Bank of Commerce will move into the space vacated by Gateway as soon as possible, perhaps in time for the first week of school, said Daryl Swanson, director of Nebraska unions.

"Since all of the equipment in the bank is Gateway's, the two banks will have to decide what will stay and what will go," Swanson said.

Even if NBC is not completely moved in by Aug. 24, it will probably set up temporary services for students, Swanson said.

NBC literally came to the rescue of the union when Gateway's lease went up for bids in June, Swanson said.

The space in the union had been leased to Gateway Bank since 1974, but business had been so good for Gateway Bank that the bank decided to expand to a larger location with a drive-up teller, Swanson said. Swanson said when the bids opened June 15, some savings and loans companies were interested in setting up automated teller machines, but none were interested in manual check cashing.

NBC decided to open a limited service bank at the City Union that will provide check cashing for out-of-town accounts. Students who are customers of NBC will be able to use the automated teller machine.

The automated teller service will honor plastic cards from all over the state, Swanson said. NBC's Bank-In-The-Box is in the same computer system, called NETS, that nearly all banks are hooked up to, he said.

"If students use their home bank cards in the machine they will be able to avoid the 50 cent check cashing charge," Swanson said.

Services will be limited at the union office, because under Nebraska law banks are not allowed to have more than two full-service branches. NBC already has two full service offices, one at 40th and South streets and one at 70th and East-park Plaza.

Swanson said that NBC's move to UNL is a satisfactory arrangement both for the bank and the campus.

"Our main concern is to serve the students' financial needs," Swanson said.

Sierra Club polls cyclists

Over 140 bicyclists in Lincoln responded to a Bluestem Sierra Club survey on their bicycling habits and ideas this summer.

Of the surveys tallied, the club said 124 bicyclists report logging an estimated 7,300 miles per year. At 20 miles per gallon gas mileage, this would represent a savings of 3,650 gallons of gas per year, or over $4,500 for 124 people.
