HARMAN KARDON

Harman Kardon is the company that introduced the first high fidelity receiver, the first stereo receiver, the first ultrawideband tube amplifier, the first stereo cassette deck with *Dolby noise reduction, the first tuner with phase locked loop tuning circuitry, and the first cassette deck to employ the totally compatible *HX Dolby noise reduction system. Only to mention a few.

It's no wonder that most people connected with the high fidelity industry consider Harman Kardon as the leader.

This new Kenwood cassette deck with Mecha-Logic controls with professional "feel" can be yours without spending a bundle.

Take all the really important factors like metal tape capability, mecha-logic controls, Dolby* noise reduction, and you will find the KX-50 a winner not only for its quality, but also in terms of value. In addition, the KX-50 is designed to work for the operator. For example, a light pressure on one of the mecha-logic touch keys will give almost exactly the same kind of positive response as the logic controls on expensive open reel decks. That kind of innovative engineering is hard to equal on this price level. But for serious users, where the KX-50 really stands out from the rest is in its superb performance. With its Kenwood-engineered features such as the ruggedly built and highly accurate two belt drive system and specially designed long-wear magnetic head, the KX-50 pushes performance to levels unsurpassed in this range. And don't forget one other benefit; the KX-50 belongs to a whole family of separate components that make system building easy, safe, attractive and the best part is our price. *TM Dolby Laboratories
