This U.S. Postal Service booth soon will be removed from the UNL campus. It will be replaced by a smaller version, located in the basement of the Nebraska Union on the north side next to the vending area.

Postal machine carries on following mail center closing

The list of what's new at the Nebraska Union this fall includes a small machine that doesn't look like much, but should become a popular stop for students and faculty.

"The postal machine is really quite an amazing thing," said Frank Kuhn, assistant union director.

"Students will be able to get a lot more done with their mail here than they have before," he said.

The Self Service Stamp Machine is about the size of a vending machine, and is next to the University Bookstore. It can distribute stamp booklets, envelopes and post cards. It also has air mail and aerogram envelopes as well as express mail.

The machine has listings of postage rates from first to third class. A similar machine has already been in service at the East Union for a year, and its popularity there should be repeated on city campus, Kuhn said.

The stamp machine should be of added value to the area because of the scheduled closing of the mail center in the northwest corner of the Selleck parking lot. With that center gone, the union's stamp machine will be the only one with its capabilities on the city campus, Kuhn said.

Lincoln city ordinance limits fireworks sales

A Lincoln city ordinance passed Aug. 17 will restrict the sale of fireworks to July 3 and 4, and to persons 18 and older.

Mike Steinman, Lincoln City Council member, said he had heard a lot of concern about the use of fireworks.

"I feel if we can restrict the use of fireworks to those 18 and over we will make progress toward health and safety," Steinman said.

Steinman made amendments to an original proposal by Councilman Eric Youngberg to ban all fireworks sales, Fireworks vendors who are caught selling to minors will not be able to renew their sales permits, Steinman said.

Pat Egan of Egan Enterprises Inc., said he believes fireworks related injuries will increase with the ordinance because of illegal sales of M-80's and "inch-and-a-halves."

"It's really terrible they banned the lady finger," Egan said. "It's the only thing we had that went bang. You can hold them in your hand and it doesn't hurt. It's a joke, a sad joke," he said.

Egan said he was not worried about selling the fireworks because he said he thought he could sell as many in the two days as in the past. He said he was worried because the ordinance will keep people from celebrating the holiday.

"If you take away the legal sales there will be bootleggers and I bet their business will increase 1,000 percent."

"The distributors in Missouri and South Dakota will be tickled to death," he said.

Impromptunes to play

The Impromptunes will give a free concert of improvised music at 4 p.m., Aug. 30, in the State Capitol Rotunda. The unstructured instrumental concert will be open to the public.

The instrumental trio features Jeff Johnson at the drums, Henry Wells playing bass and Pierre Batiste playing the saxophone. The one-hour concert will also include poetry and lyrics by Gill Scott Heron, Billie Holiday, and Cole Porter. The Impromptunes, a new group, perform throughout the Lincoln area.
