

IS A CHRISTIAN PEACE MOVEMENT AT UNL POSSIBLE?

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE LAST CENTURY THOUSANDS OF EVANGELICAL, BORN-AGAIN CHRISTIANS IN THIS COUNTRY DECIDED THAT NO CHILD OF GOD SHOULD BE A SLAVE; THAT THE WHOLE SYSTEM OF SLAVERY WAS UNACCEPTABLE TO A FAITH CENTERED IN A CHRIST WHO FREES THE HEARTS, MINDS, SOULS AND BODIES OF HIS PEOPLE -
- AND THE SYSTEM OF LEGALIZED SLAVERY WAS ENDED!

AT THE END OF THE 20th CENTURY, THE CALL IS FOR CHRISTIANS WHOSE ONLY LORD IS JESUS CHRIST - NOT THE NATION, OR THE ECONOMIC SYSTEM, OR THE AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE, OR MIDDLE-CLASS COMFORTS - THE CALL TO DECIDE ONCE AND FOR ALL THAT THE WAR SYSTEM, THE ARMAMENTS SYTEM, THE MILITARY SYSTEM, THE DEATH SYSTEM, IS UNACCEPTABLE TO CHRISTIAN FAITH; THAT NO CHILD OF GOD SHOULD DIE OR BE MAIMED OR TERRORIZED BECAUSE SOME POLITICIAN OR MILITARY LEADER OR WAR GAMES STATISTICIAN DECIDES THAT HE OR SHE IS EXPENDABLE!

IF YOU ARE NOT TOO FEARFUL OR TOO DESPAIRING OR TOO SUBJECT TO THE FALSE GODS OF THIS WORLD TO HEAR THIS CALL

Task force recommendation lowering requirements loses

Rejecting a task force's recommendation to lower the foreign language requirement for the bachelor of science degree from two years to one, the UNL College of Arts and Sciences faculty approved "relatively minor" changes in degree requirements, said the college's associate dean.

Tom Bestul said that at a Friday meeting, most of about 150 faculty members also opposed a proposal of the Task Force on Undergraduate Education which would have dropped most of the 60-hour math and natural sciences requirement.

Social science classes would have been allowed to be substituted for all but 13 of the 60 hours of natural sciences and math.

The changes approved open up two options for degree seekers, he said. Under one option, a "concentration requirement" of 18 hours of studies in one area in addition to 12 hours of humanities, nine hours of social sciences and nine hours of natural sciences will be required.

The other option requires 21 hours of humanities and social sciences, he said. At least six hours each of humanities and social sciences and three hours of the history of civilization and six hours of non-western and minority cultures must be taken to fill the 21 hours, Bestul said.

At present, 18 hours of the humanities and social sciences, including at least six hours of each, are required, he said.

A proposal that would have allowed students to substitute up to six hours of "cultural diversity" classes, such as history or literature of another civilization for part of the 12-hour modern languages requirement, was defeated.

The addition of a social science degree as an option to the bachelor of arts and sciences degree also was opposed, he said.

The Task force on Undergraduate Education, appointed in 1979, is composed of students and faculty from the arts and sciences college. The arts and sciences faculty has set a tentative date of Nov. 16 to discuss implementing the degree changes, Bestul said.

Survey: Dating more violent

Violence is a growing part of relationships between college students, according to a survey by a University of Arizona sociologist. Mary Reige Laner interviewed students at colleges in Oregon, Arizona and Minnesota and found about 60 percent had experienced some form of physical violence during dating relationships.

Nearly 30 percent said they expected slapping, hitting or scratching in anger in the course of serious relationships, and over half of those who had experienced this kind of violence said they still had a relationship with the person they had abused or were abused by.

Affection is becoming a more important part of sexual relationships for college men, according to a University of Iowa professor who surveyed students at two religiously-affiliated schools. He found women still tended to abstain from premarital sex on religious grounds more often than men.

But in a change from traditional male attitudes, more men indicated the need for emotional involvement before participating in premarital sex. The survey included responses from 415 students.

Alcoholics Anonymous is drawing a greater percentage of young people to its program. Since 1977, one in every four new AA members has been 30 or under, and one in 25 has been 20 or under, according to a survey by the General Service Board of AA. The overall percentage of young people rose from 11.3 percent to 14.7 percent in three years.
