

Visiting architect speaks at Sheldon Art Gallery

Ralph Knowles, architect and author, will speak at 4 p.m. Friday in the Sheldon Art Gallery Auditorium.

Knowles is at UNL this week as Hyde Visiting Critic, a program established in memory of A. Leicester Hyde several years ago.

Knowles was recipient of the American Institute of Architects Research Medal in 1976 and is the author of Energy and Form: An Ecological Approach to Urban Growth, and Sun, Rhythm and Form, recently published by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Knowles has been cited for his achievements in energy-conscious design during the last 10 years. He is considered a prominent authority on environmental adaptation and design.

East Campus building celebrates anniversary

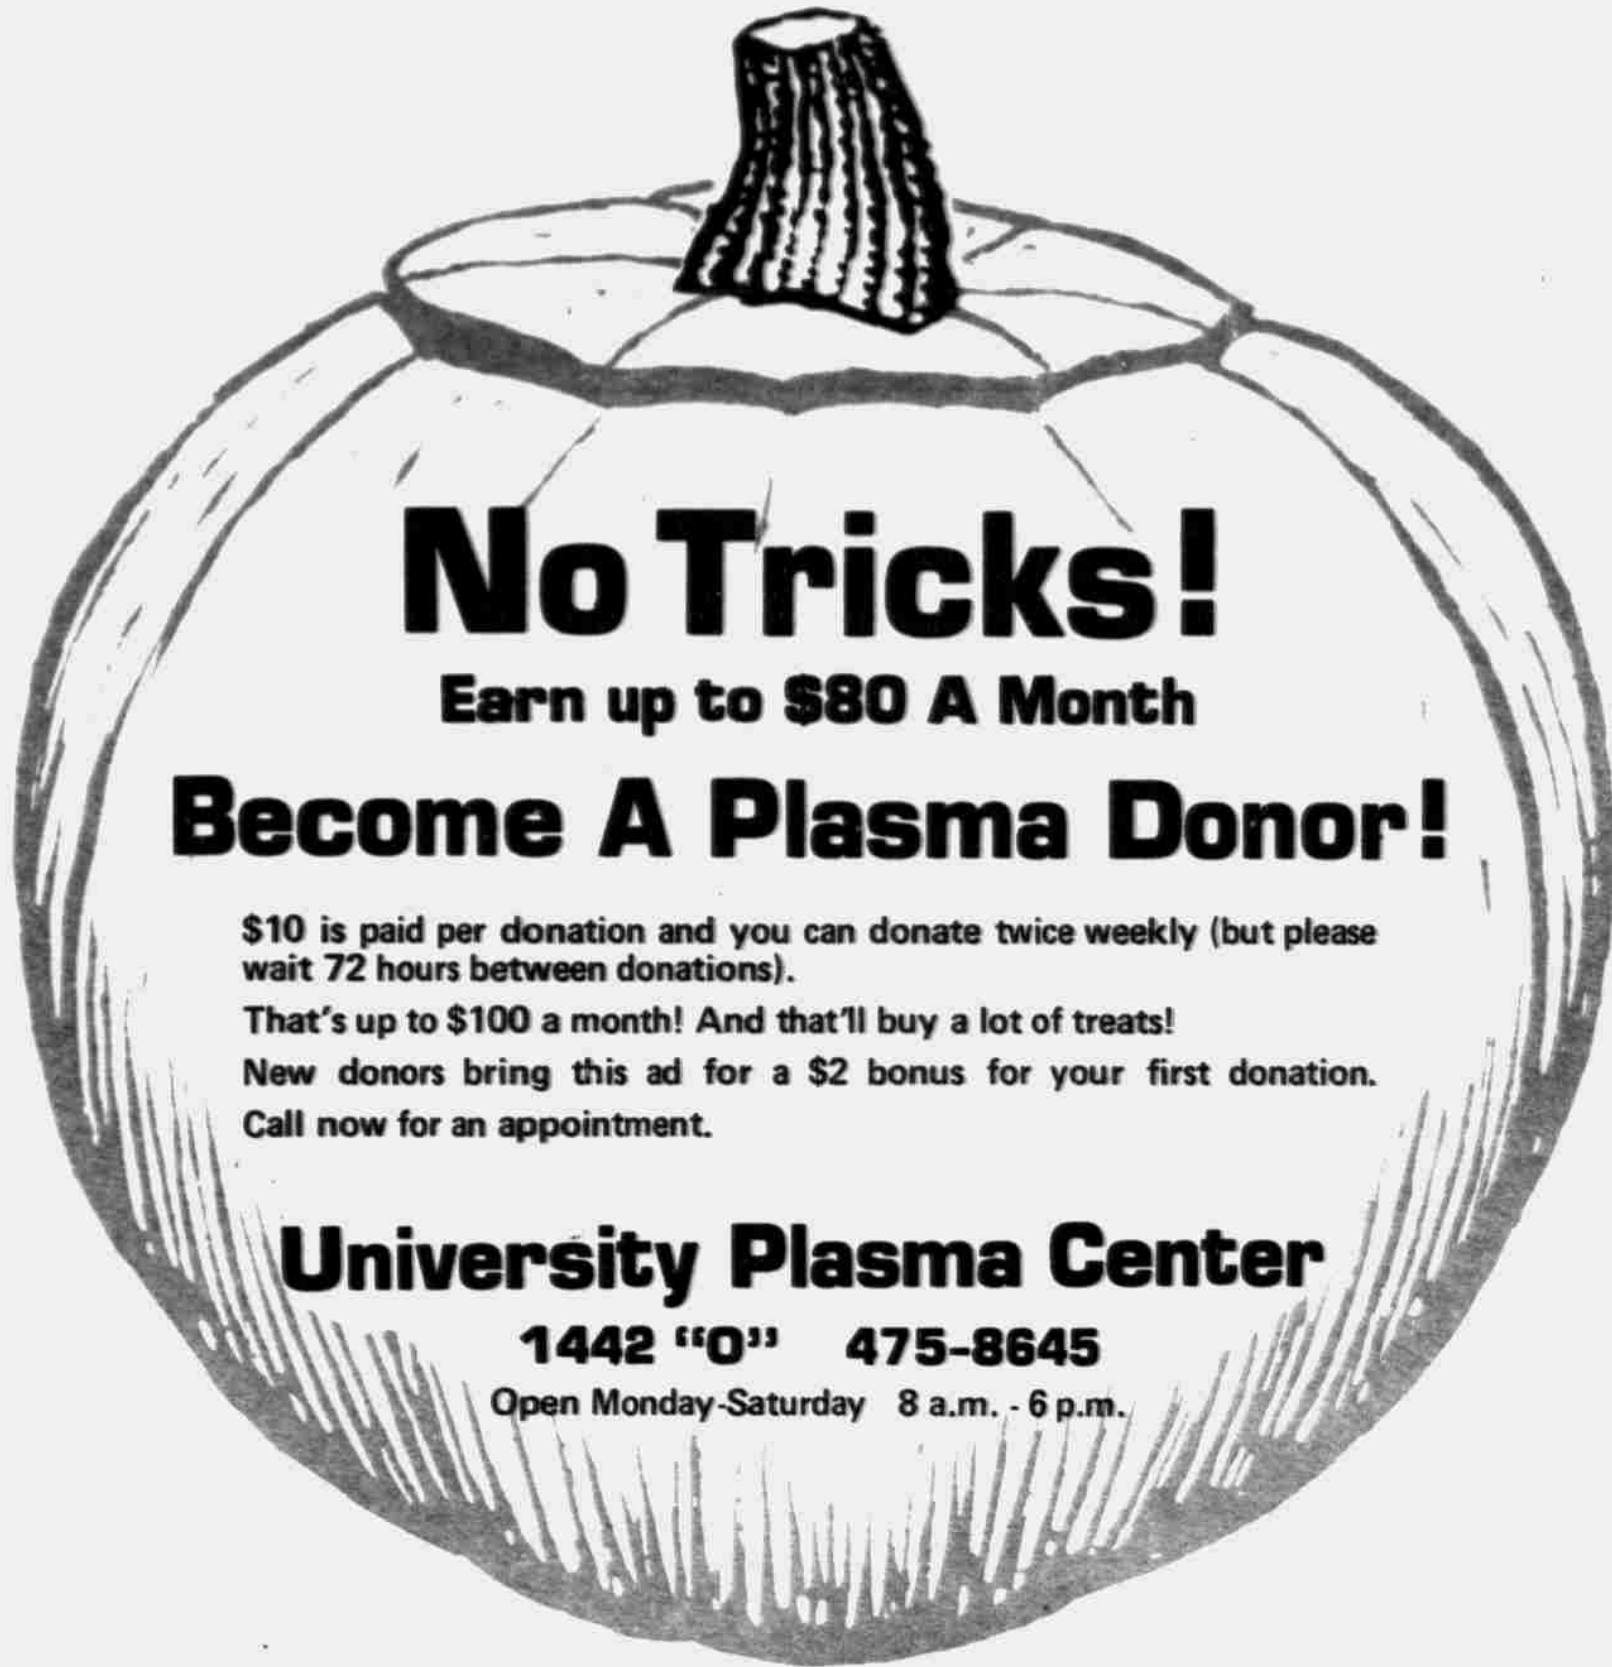

The Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, 33rd and Holdrege streets, is celebrating its 20th anniversary Sunday with an open house from noon to 5 p.m.

The center, home of the UNL Division of Continuing Studies, is a gathering site for persons attending continuing education conferences, workshops and classes. Its Lincoln Dining Room, which is open to the public, is a meeting place for university and community members.

The center was built in 1961 at a cost of $3 million. The Kellogg Foundation donated $1.5 million of that amount, and the other $1.5 million came from matching funds raised by Nebraskans.

The center's services now reach across the country and around the world through classes and meetings which draw international figures to Lincoln.

Tours through the center's rooms and explanations of its many functions will be given during the open house. Refreshments will be served.
