CFA unanimously approves health center budget request

By Mary Louise Knapp

The Committee for Fees Allocation unanimously approved the University Health Center's $2,224.78 budget request for 1982-83 at a meeting Tuesday in the Nebraska Union.

Current health center fees are $34.70 per student per semester. The increase would make them $40.66 per student per semester, Steve Blom, health center administrator, said at the meeting.

Included in the health center's budget is a request for a part-time secretary at the physical therapy clinic and an A.B.D. psychologist, a psychology student working for a doctorate degree.

The health center also requested that salaries for health aides in living units be increased from the current $5 per week to $7.50 per week.

Blom said a part-time secretary is needed in the physical therapy department because during the past year the number of students seeking counseling at the Mental Health Clinic increased by 25 percent. Also, Mental Health Director Robert Heins resigned Friday, Blom said.

CFA members expressed mixed feelings about the health center's budget.

"It is unfair to approve a part-time secretary given our stringent position on Fund B," said Becky Stingley, CFA member. Fund B student fees, which include fees for the health center, the recreation department and the unions, make up that portion of student fees which is not refundable.

CFA member Chris Day moved to reduce the request for health aide salaries from the proposed $7.50 per week to $6 per week.
