

New DN editors announced

Patti Gallagher, Daily Nebraskan fall editor in chief, has announced the editors and columnists for next semester.

Besty Miller, a junior from Papillion, will be the news editor. Miller, a journalism major, has worked four semesters at the Daily Nebraskan as a reporter and one as a copy editor.

Lori Siewert will be the managing editor, after one semester as a copy editor. Siewert, a junior journalism major from Lincoln, will be a copy editor for the Lincoln Star this summer.

The assistant news editors will be Melinda Norris from Bellevue and Leslie Kendrick from Lincoln. Norris, a senior journalism major, has been with the paper two semesters as a reporter, doubling as a copy editor this semester. Kendrick, a senior majoring in both news editorial journalism and life science, worked last semester as a reporter and doubled this semester as a reporter and copy editor with the Daily Nebraskan.

David Wood, a senior from Omaha, will be entertainment editor this fall. Wood, a journalism and English major, worked at the Daily Nebraskan in 1978 as a book reviewer and worked as a general reviewer this and last semester.

Larry Sparks will return for his fourth consecutive semester as sports editor. Sparks, a sophomore from Nehawka, worked as a sports reporter for one semester before becoming editor. Sparks is majoring in news editorial journalism and political science.

The new photography chief will be Dave Bentz, a junior health, physical education and recreation major from Lincoln. Bentz has worked for the Daily Nebraskan for the past two semesters and also has worked for

The Associated Press.

Dave Luebke, a junior history and German major from Lincoln, will be directing the art department for the fifth consecutive semester. Luebke began his career at the Daily Nebraskan as a staff artist in 1978.

Cindy Gardner, a junior journalism major from Scottsbluff, will continue as supplement editor. Gardner's responsibilities include editing the First Down for home football games.

Gallagher has selected five student columnists for the fall semester.

Matthew Millea, an English major, is the only returning columnist. Millea is a junior from Lincoln.

Bob Glissmann, a Daily Nebraskan staffer since the fall of 1981, is a senior from Omaha. He will become a columnist after two semesters as a reporter, one as a copy editor and one as an assistant news editor.

Charlie Flowerday, Daily Nebraskan reporter in the fall of 1981, has a bachelor's degree in English from Princeton University and is pursuing a bachelor's degree in journalism at UNL.

Jeff Allen, a business student, and Julia O'Gara, a junior women's studies and English major, are the other columnists. Allen received his bachelor's degree in political science from UNL and is a native of Omaha. O'Gara is from Lincoln.

Gallagher said the Daily Nebraskan is still accepting applications for night news editor, assistant night news editor and graphics editor. Applications will be taken beginning Tuesday until Friday at 5 p.m. Reporter, artist, photographer and copy editor applications also will be taken beginning Tuesday.

Winners of four writing contests honored by English Department

The winners of four writing contests sponsored by the UNL English Department were announced Thursday by Contest Committee Chairman James L. Roberts.

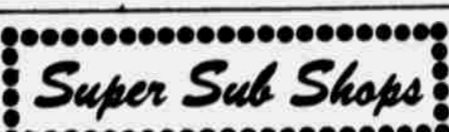

Winners of the Vreeland Awards were Judith Sornberger, a graduate student from Lincoln, and Larry Eclov, a senior from Britton, S.D. Those awards were $550. Contestants were judged on a packet of various kinds of writing.

Winners of the Mari Sandoz Prairie Schooner awards for fiction were: first place, a $165 prize, Patricia Marie Murphy, a UNL English instructor from Lincoln; second place, an $80 prize, Kirs Vervaecke, a junior from Lincoln; and third place, a $50 prize, Kathleen Woolridge, a graduate student from Lincoln.

Winners of the American Academy of Poets award were: first place, a $100 prize, Lorraine Duggin, a graduate student from Omaha; second place, a $50 prize, David Flynn, a junior from Lincoln; and third place, a $25 prize, Eric Ottem, a freshman from Ogallala.

Service offers graduates help in new cities

The Student Alumni Association offers a new service to graduating seniors. The free service, Graduate Relocation Assistance Settlement Program, is designed to help graduates who will be starting work in an unfamiliar city.

Peg Fritz, Student Alumni Association coordinator, said GRASP may be able to help graduates beginning a career outside Nebraska. Through GRASP, Fritz said, graduates are matched with a UNL alumnus living in the city that the graduate will move to.

"Many times it is hard to meet people that are interested in the same things you are outside the office," Fritz said.

The alumni members of GRASP will help recent graduates by explaining areas of the city, answering traffic and transportation questions, telling about clubs and social points of interest and offering advice from their past experiences, she said.

Currently, GRASP has alumni contacts in Denver, Phoenix, Dallas and Kansas City, Fritz said. As the program grows, more cities will be added according to the numbers of students moving there, she said.

"GRASP is flexible - we are trying to set it up for the areas where the majority of the graduates are going," Fritz said.

The alumni response to GRASP has been phenomenal, Fritz said.

"They really want to meet with the new graduates," Fritz said. "They just want to help them any way they can."

Lisa Falconer, Student Alumni chairperson for GRASP, said graduating seniors should contact the Alumni Association at 472-2841 to inquire about the program.
