

State campaign to promote Gasohol's new name

By Carol Harrah

The oil companies that market Gasohol are changing the product's name seeking a new market for it, an administrator in the Nebraska State Energy Office said.

Todd Sneller said Gasohol is a product that mixes 90 percent unleaded gasoline with 10 percent ethanol. Sneller said Gasohol will have as many as three or four different names, depending on which oil company it is bought from.

"The most common will be super unleaded with ethanol," he said. "When you drive into a gas station, it will say ethanol so that you know what the product is."

Sneller said his office will start a $100,000 campaign in July to promote Gasohol and its name change.

"We are starting this campaign due to the name change," he said. "We want people to know that Gasohol is still around."

Sneller said many people don't realize that Gasohol is unleaded fuel, so they are afraid to use it in their cars.

"When you have a car with a decal that says unleaded fuel only and you don't know what kind of gas is used in Gasohol, you won't buy it," he said. "We are trying to make people realize it's unleaded."

Sneller said some older cars have problems using the product, but they are rare.

"The only problems that have ever come up are with the fuel filter," he said. "The ethanol cleans the engine real well, and there's a lot of dirt in the gas tank."

Sometimes a lot of dirt comes out of the gas tank at the same time and you then have to get a new fuel filter. It's only $2 or $3 and it only happens in 1 percent of the cars. The cars prior to 1975 came before the car and oil companies were beginning to phase out regular gasoline."

Sneller said Gasohol prices usually range from 2 cents under to 2 cents over the price of unleaded fuel. He said some business people will charge more for it because they feel Gasohol is a better product.

"You may get a little better gas mileage, so it is worth a little more."

Speech team finishes ninth in the nation

The UNL speech team finished ninth at the National Forensic Association National Individual Events Tournament last weekend at Ohio State University. The competition included 144 teams and 800 students from across the nation.

UNL placed in the top 10 for the first time in the tournament, led by senior Kate Joeckel. Joeckel of Lincoln became the first woman ever to win a national championship in Extemporaneous Speaking. Joeckel also placed third in Persuasive Speaking, fifth in Expository Speaking, fifth in Rhetorical Criticism, sixth in Impromptu Speaking and second in individual sweepstakes. She set a new national record by qualifying for final rounds in five different events.

In addition, John Heine, of Pawnee City, was a quarterfinalist in impromptu Speaking and Jim Friedman of Ogallala, was a quarterfinalist in Expository Speaking. Other team members participating in the tournament were: Deb Renter, Valley; Michele Sindelar, Norfolk; Joyce Hoelling, Lawrence, and Roger Aden, Scottsbluff.

Approximately 200 people competed in each event.
