

Husker baseball team to face Sooners in series

By Mark Krause

With a No. 6 national ranking and a berth in the Big Eight post-season tournament already clinched, the Nebraska baseball team travels to Norman, Okla., this weekend for Friday and Saturday afternoon double-headers against the Sooners.

While the ranking given by Collegiate Baseball to Nebraska is the highest ever received by a Cornhusker baseball team, another Big Eight team is closer to the top of the list. Oklahoma State, 12-4 in conference play, sits three spots above Nebraska in the No. 3 spot. But Nebraska Assistant Coach Ray Tromba said the Huskers cannot worry about the Cowboys.

"We can't control what happens in Columbia... Tromba said referring to the Oklahoma State-Missouri series this weekend. "All that concerns us is going down to Oklahoma and winning four games." It appears that the conference championship will be a dogfight between the Huskers and the Cowboys.

This is the final Big Eight series for Nebraska, while Oklahoma State still must face Kansas in a four-game stand next weekend. Although a berth in the team Big Eight tournament is assured for the Huskers, Tromba said the team is still shooting for the conference championship. The result of a championship would be automatic consideration for an at-large bid to NCAA regional play.

Offense is the name of the game right now for the Huskers, although the pitching performances are getting better. Tromba said, Nebraska's team batting average is .322 in conference play.

"The guys are all hitting the ball well," Tromba said, and singles out centerfielder Roger Hill, who is hitting a .335 clip.

"Roger has raised his average almost 70 points in the last 15 games. He is doing a great job with the bat," Tromba said. Tromba also had praise for other Husker swatters.

"Ben Amaya, Steve Stanicek, Mark

Mauer, I could go on and on," Tromba said.

Although Tromba said his pitching staff has not been as sharp as he would like it to be, it drew some praise also.

"By and large, they have done well," he said.

Tromba gave good reports of Husker hurlers Todd Oakes, Anthony Kelley and Jeff Anderson. He said the Huskers need improvement from Steve Gehrke and Bob Sebra, the top two pitchers at the beginning of the season.

"It's no secret. We need to get Steve Gehrke healthy and Bob Sebra back on the right track," Tromba said.

The four starters against Oklahoma have not been determined, but Tromba hinted that Kelley, Oakes and Anderson will see some hill action. The Husker pitchers should receive defensive support in the series.

"We are playing good defense," Tromba said. "Something that goes unnoticed is Steve Stanicek's defense. He has been doing a super job with the glove."

The Huskers will have to keep an eye out for John Russell, who Tromba said "is on a tear." The Sooner outfielder, who hit .348 with 16 homeruns last year, is doing well again this year. Tromba said the whole Sooner team hit the ball well last weekend against Kansas State.

"Oklahoma will go up there and swing the bats. They are scoring some runs, but they have been giving a lot of runs up," he said.

Husker batsmen can expect to face Sooner pitchers Bruce Heinze, Bob Straight, Darrell Rogers and Brent Worchester, Tromba said. He added that he is confident the Huskers can take the series.

"There is no reason in the world why we can't go down there and walk away with four wins," Tromba said.
