

Buffaloes . . .

"What McCartney has done is simplified what the defense is trying to do," he said. "We won't have as many big plays, but we won't give up as many, either."

Offensive changes may not be as noticeable, but Claggett said he expects to see McCartney employ an expanded passing attack. Both quarterback Randy Essington and one of his favorite targets, tight end Dave Hestera, are back this season.

Also returning to the Colorado backfield is wing-back Dan Holmes. Holmes was Colorado's third leading receiver as a 16-year-old freshman in 1979. After spending a year in junior college to straighten out some academic problems, Holmes was redshirted last year and now returns for his junior season.

When Colorado's running game is in gear, one of the most likely to ground out the yardage is returning halfback Lee Rousen.

Protecting Colorado's offensive artillery will be a rebuilt wall of linemen. Three junior college players and a transfer will join veteran Vince Rafferty. John Firm, Calvin Beaty and Randy Hogbin all come to the Colorado trenches from California junior colleges. Tim Howard joins the troops after transferring from Colorado State.

A lack of depth plagues the Colorado kicking game.

Claggett said that neither placekicker Tom Field nor punter Art Woods has a strong backup. The success of the Buffaloes kicking game will depend on these two matching up to previous performances.

Field was considered one of the best placekickers in the conference as a freshman in 1979. He came back from being the Buffs' leading scorer to hit only two of seven field goals in 1980. He was redshirted after an injury last season.
